The Senior Class

OF RED LION HIGH SCHOOL,

RED LION, PENNSYLVANIA

Foreword

For the past couple years there have been occasional comments to the effect that the commencement idea at Red Lion should be nearing the half-hundred mark. In the fall the information became official—the class of '52 would be the fiftieth class to hold commencement exercises.

Considering this quite a distinction, the staff immediately decided to adopt the anniversary theme for this year's annual. In the subsequent contacts with alumni, the rooting through attics for almost forgotten pictures, the scanning of past school records, and the sessions with our top authority, Mr. Moore, many interesting and surprising facts about our alma mater came to light. Much of this information the editors have been able to include in the pages of this book.

And so has grown the 1952 Lion, which we hope will prove of interest to students, alumni, and friends of Red Lion High School.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

ADMINISTRATION . . . the school board and principals . . . the teachers who hand out our assignments . . . the many classes we enjoy . . . ever-faithful cooks and janitors.

ORGANIZATIONS. . . . various clubs to which we belong . . . service groups as well as those designed for pleasure . . . activities sponsored by them.

SPORTS . . . the squads and coaches . . . the scores of the season . . . the morale-boosting cheerleaders . . . the noontime intramurals . . . girls' athletic program.

UNDERCLASSMEN . . . the seemingly very young of the junior high . . . the more blasé members of senior high . . . their officers, parties and programs.

SENIORS . . . the officers of the class of '52 . . . graduation photos . . . the dramatic hit of the season . . . a senior directory listing offices held, activities, and courses of study.

PATRONS . . . generous supporters of this annual . . . parents and relatives of seniors . . . teachers and students . . . business firms and townspeople—our friends.

HISTORICAL HIGHLIGHTS

1896. . . . First high school . . . two rooms in Nebinger Building.

1899. . . . First graduating class . . . five members . . . four rooms in building.

1900. . . . First diplomas given from Red Lion High School.

1901. . . . First commencement held in Old Brick Evangelical Church . . . eleven graduates.

1907. . . . First class to graduate from the four year high school program . . . nine in the group.

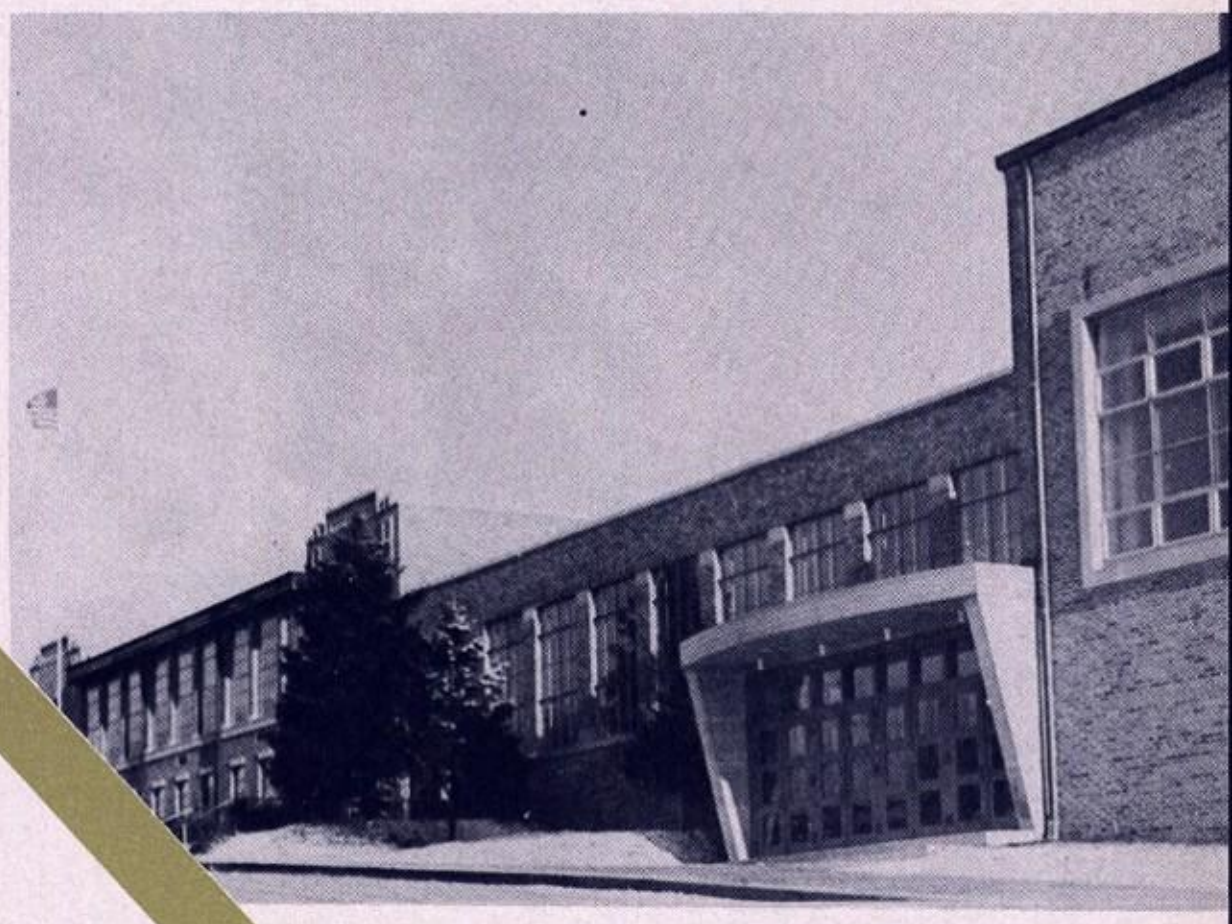
1910. . . . High school transferred to building now known as the Intermediate Building, on the corner of Charles and Henrietta Streets.

1926. . . . Cornerstone laid for a junior-senior high school building . . . variety of courses offered . . . gym started . . . school on list of secondary schools accredited by Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools of Middle States and Maryland.

1937. . . . Library and new classrooms added . . . many activities started by this time.

1951 . . . Gymnasium-auditorium addition . . . renovation of old gym and auditorium . . . new cafeteria, offices, classrooms, etc.

1952. . . . Fiftieth commencement exercises . . . 2,763 alumni from Red Lion High.



Somewhat of a contrast to the first R.L.H.S. is the modern building which has been in use since 1928.

"Old Fort Sumpter" (now the Nebinger Building) was used as the high school from 1896 to 1910.

ADMINISTRATION

These willing monitors guide each day

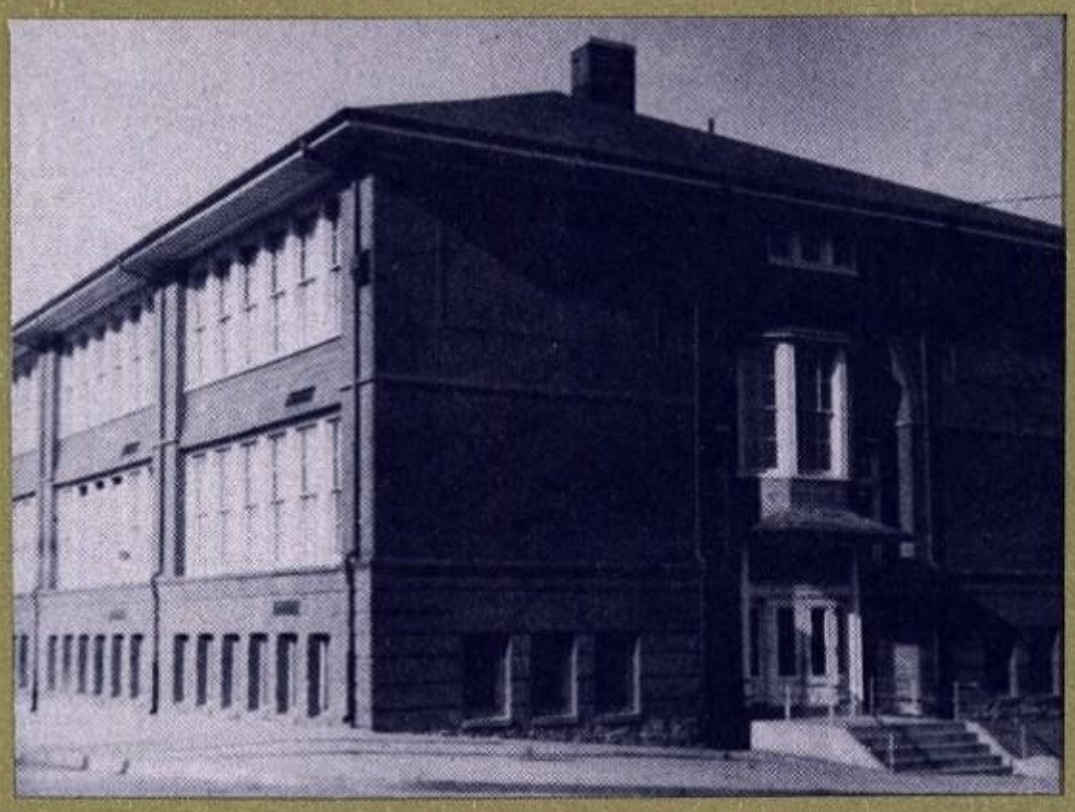
The eager students along the way.

ADMINISTRATION

Almost three score years ago our forefathers planned for this town a high school, dedicated to the hundreds of generations to follow. The Fort Sumpter school was the immediate result. Later changes and additions have constantly improved the system, and today's students find numerous advantages never dreamed of by those students of 1898.

As we look back upon the scenes of R. L. H. S., it is realized that always behind the action there was the progressive school board, supplemented by a well trained teaching personnel. Advancing but never retreating, the school has come out on top—from a six member faculty to a fifty-one, from a four room building to a fifty-one, from a graduating class of five to one of a hundred and forty-three.

Our supervising principal, Dan B. Kulp, B.S., M.A., is kept quite busy with his many school duties, but finds time to be active in the social and civic affairs of Red Lion.



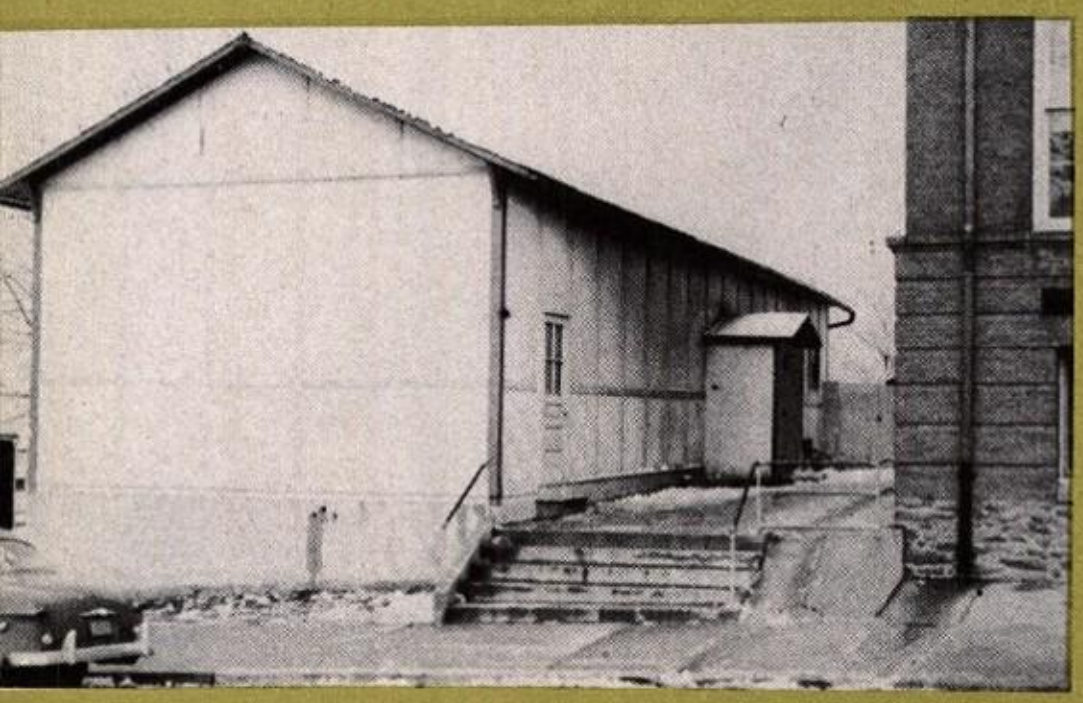
Now a grade school building, this was the high school from 1910 to 1927.

Edgar C. Moore, B.A., our high school principal, is proud to have been a member of the first four-year class of R.L.H.S. This may be one of the reasons why he has always been so willing to give his efficient services to our alma mater.

The Red Lion Board of Education—Mr. David R. Fink, Mr. Charles E. Horn, Mr. Edward Landis, Mr. Thomas C. Holtzinger, Mr. Earl Hartman, Dr. W. S. Dellinger, Mr. C. C. Rexroth.

Mrs. Phyllis Parlett, secretary to the supervising principal, obligingly takes a message for a member of the faculty.

Mrs. Arlene Gilbert, the other half of the office force, between the absentee lists and announcements takes care of some official correspondence.



The old cafeteria, as it is familiarly known to present students, was originally one of the two temporary class buildings located on the high school grounds in the middle 1920's.

Mr. C. E. Smith, first R. L. H. S. principal, stands beside the high school students of 1902. To his left is Mr. S. S. Laucks, who later served in the same capacity.

Luck is the exception . . . planning the rule;

So plan your future while you're in school.

GUIDANCE

As is natural, many students are in the dark when it comes to plans for the future, immediate or distant. To help these undecided students choose fields of work in which they have a good chance for success, to advise in selections of colleges, or to find available jobs —all these belong to the usual day's schedule in the guidance department.

Mary E. Farlling, B.A., M.Ed., guidance counselor as well as English instructor, posts information in her office concerning scholarships.

Charles R. Nitchkey, B.S., M.Ed., guidance consultant for the boys, is also director of athletics at R.L.H.S.

A department organized for the students' well-being,

That checks their health status from entering till leaving.

HEALTH

It is said that health is one of the first objectives of education, and Red Lion students certainly believe it. At times there is a steady stream of students to the health room for a handout of pills, a bandage for a cut, relief for a toothache, or just plain attention for some insignificant wound. Between patients the nurse grabs the phone to check on some absentee.

Years ago the nurse and dental hygienist together occupied a small room in the grade building; now they have the entire new suite in the high school building. Here they have adequate space for the routine jobs plus the state mandated physical and dental exams.

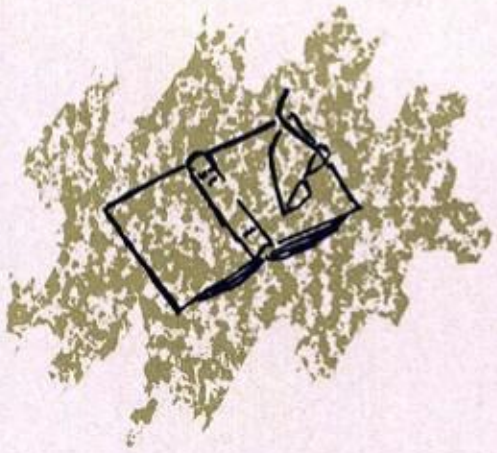
Geraldine Smeltzer, R.N., was the most popular person in the building during the grippe season.

Ardean Tollinger, dental hygienist, checks and cleans our pearls . . . she is waiting for her next victim.

All for health! It's the annual visit of the X-ray unit for benefit of seniors.

A favorite place to receive information

By reading books for an education.



LIBRARY

One of the busiest rooms in R. L. H. S. is the library. A favorite spot to students and faculty alike, the library is in constant use throughout the day.

The first library, started in 1929, was a small room only big enough to hold a few students, and contained relatively few books. Moved to its present place in 1934, the library can now accommodate many more students and provides more than fifty-three hundred books for student reading.

For news on world events, biographies and autobiographies of famous people, information on occupations and professions or just good fiction reading, the library is the place to go.

Emma Lou Skinner, B.S., puts the morning paper in its place.

A valuable place for free time, the library offers a useful and interesting selection of books.

The music department is rated on top.

They play anything from Chopin to Be Bop.

MUSIC

Mrs. Dorothy Adams, B.S., explains the do—re—mi's to her music class.

The music department of the school has been in existence since 1923, although until 1930 only the orchestra and a choral group or two existed in R.L.H.S. However, with the coming of football the need for a high school band became apparent, and from then on the music department began to expand its activities.

Today a large portion of the student body is active in some phase of music. In addition to the regular classes required of freshmen, there are various instrumental classes to satisfy the desires of students to play wind or string instruments. In extracurricular work, the department sponsors four choral groups, the band, orchestra, and dance band.

Mr. Robert Surplus, B.S., A.M. . . . Music, maestro, please! Could it be the unfinished symphony you are playing, Mr. Surplus?

Toot away, kids! It sounds okay!

The artistic ability is furthered here;

Beautiful objects are made every year.

ART

In the new modern artists' haven, which is composed mostly of windows, this year's art classes are kept busy working with leather, ceramics, papier-mâché and finger paints. Regular classes are scheduled for ninth graders, and special periods are arranged for students who are interested in furthering their artistic ability. These advanced art classes take on the jobs of painting props for plays, making posters for dances, and constructing materials for assemblies. It's a lot of work and lots of fun.

Mrs. Janet R. Swartz, B. S., supervises art in the lower grades and instructs junior high and advanced art classes.

LEFT: Poster paints and brushes occupy these seventh graders' minds (for the minute!). RIGHT: Upstairs hall is decked out for the spring art exhibit.

This is the place that gives a foundation

To boys choosing carpentering as their occupation.

INDUSTRIAL ARTS

Downstairs in 105 and 106 the fellows busy themselves in shop work. Often after school hours the boys may be found completing their class projects or making the needed dance or play tickets. Almost any object is on their list of know-hows—just name it and they can make it. This year the revolving heart for the Festival of Hearts was constructed by a few senior boys in their free time. The training which is received, whether a part of the course or a side interest, will always be beneficial because of its practicality.

Ward S. Yorks, B.S., M.Ed. . . . problem of the moment is to fix Bob Frutiger's helmet.

Dalton R. Landis, B.S., employs the plexiglass frame for his mechanical drawing project.

Future industrialists get a close-up view of work at McCleary's saw mill.

While sewing, cooking and washing the pans

These girls prepare for domestic plans.

HOME ECONOMICS

The popularity of this course, new in 1927, has grown with the years, and today an entire suite is set aside for the home ec department. From the samples that occasionally find their way to fellow students, it seems certain that the girls are making the most of their three new kitchens, to say nothing of the new sewing equipment.

Mrs. Martha Martin, B.S., is back at Red Lion after a three years' absence.

Mrs. Alice Frits, B.S., also a returnee this year, shares her time with the science department.

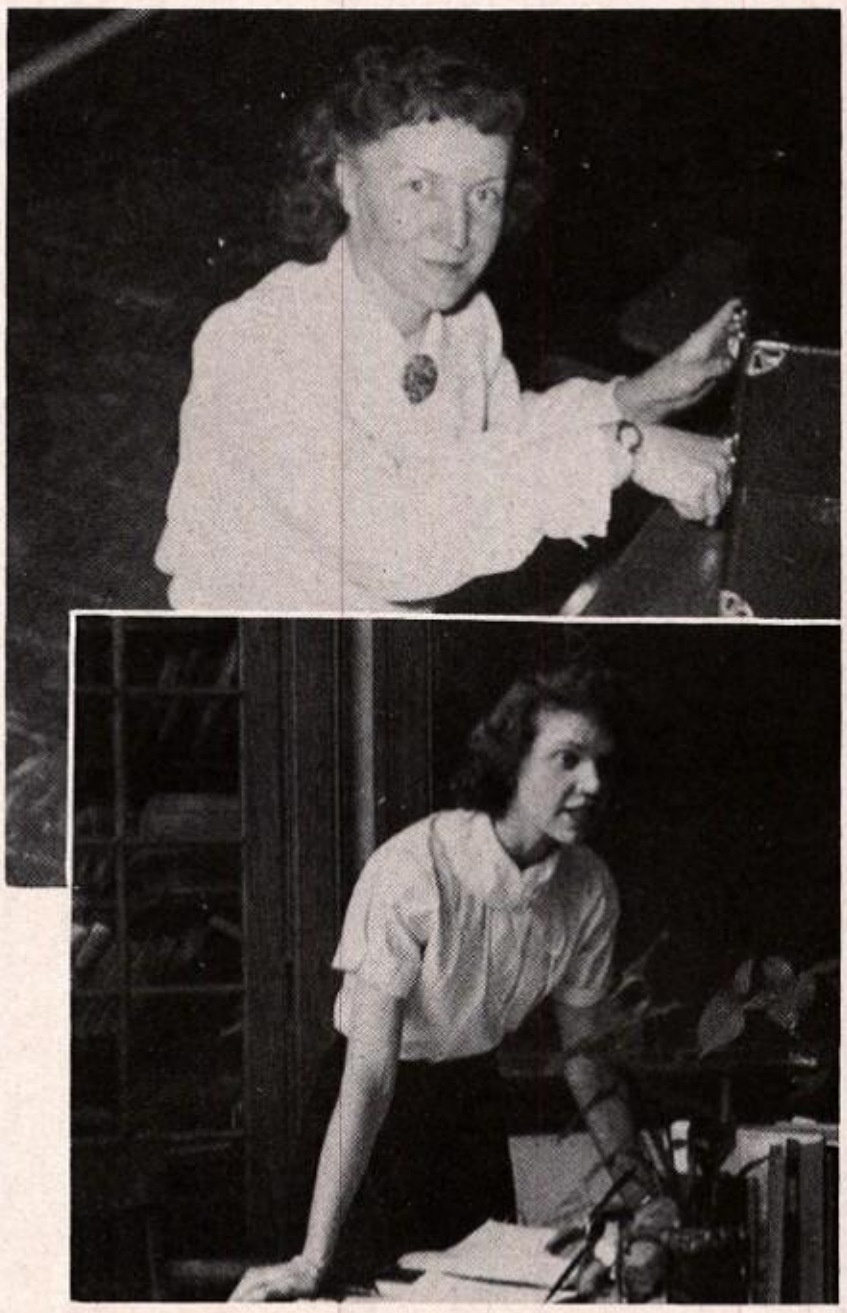
Strong bodies and muscles are bound to appear

By taking phys ed throughout the year.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

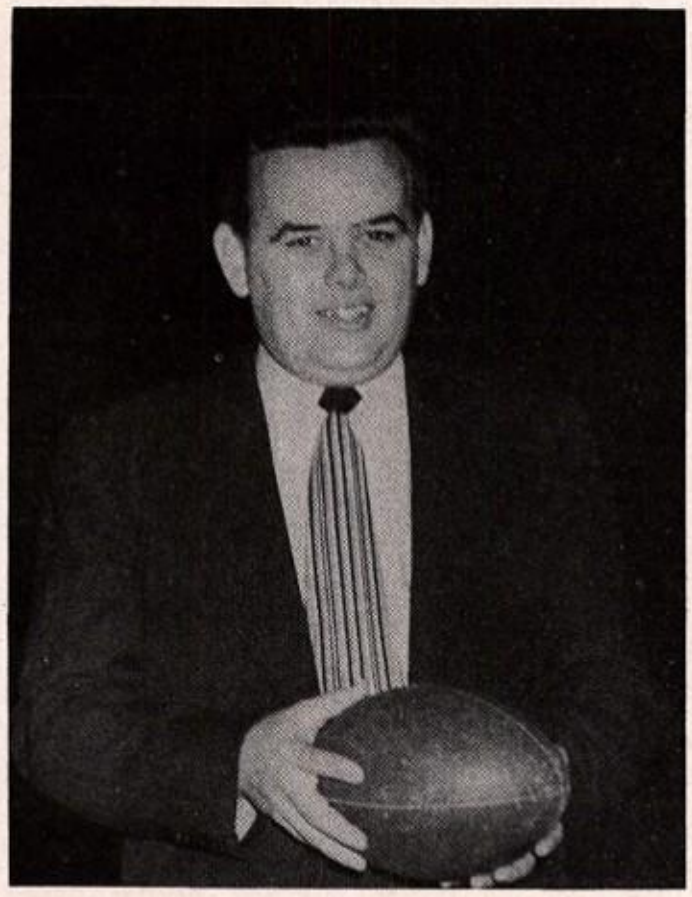
The erection of the new building in the late 1920's brought with it the addition of physical education to the boys' and girls' schedules. Sarah Graeff and Hugh Johnson were the first to instruct the Red Lion students in gymnastics.

Many new activities were added to the program this year. As a result . . . new ailments! Those burned knees from sliding down the ropes and stiff back and legs from constant exercises will never be forgotten. The new two-court gym, in regular use for the first time, also made it possible to hold boys' and girls' classes at the same time, thus enlarging the phys. ed. program considerably.



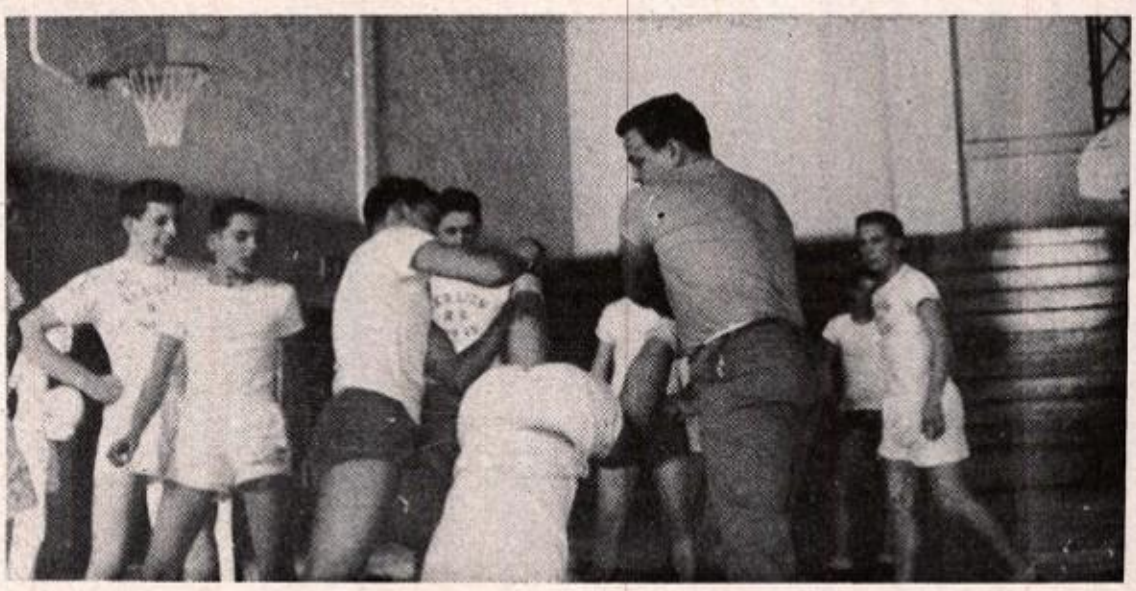
Mrs. Wanda Flinchbaugh, B.S., M.S., adjusts the record player to be used in dancing, which she has introduced to the gym schedule.

Lois Mansberger, B.A., a newscomer to the faculty, also teaches history in addition to her phys. ed. duties.



Thomas G. Yost, B.S., new football coach, has put aside his history and is devoting all of his time to phys. ed. and health.

Up and over, but it isn't quite that simple. This lad needs a little push.



These busy students are learning the work

Of a secretary, accountant and filing clerk.

BUSINESS EDUCATION

Future secretaries, stenographers and bookkeepers are the products of the commercial department, to say nothing of broken fingernails and uncontrollable tempers. Yes, there is nothing as trying as hàving the typewriter ribbon slip off the roll after typing an errorless letter in required time.

In spite of all the trials and tribulations these students learn well the do's and don't's of office work, typing, shorthand, filing, etc. Commercial graduates from R.L.H.S. rate high with business firms in the area.

Richard A. Winn, B.S., besides his various teaching duties, finds time to manage high school ticket sales.

The camera finds Jeanette Espenshade, B.S., in a very serious mood. Could there be a problem bothering you, Miss Espenshade? Good luck to a very lovely comm. student. Really can smile sometimes. J Espenshade

LOWER LEFT: The use of the calculating machine is practiced during this senior class. Ned seems to be slightly outnumbered.

Mrs. Dorothy S. Bowers, B.S., M.A., is again at her old post. Previously, as a R.L.H.S. teacher, she was head of the commercial department.

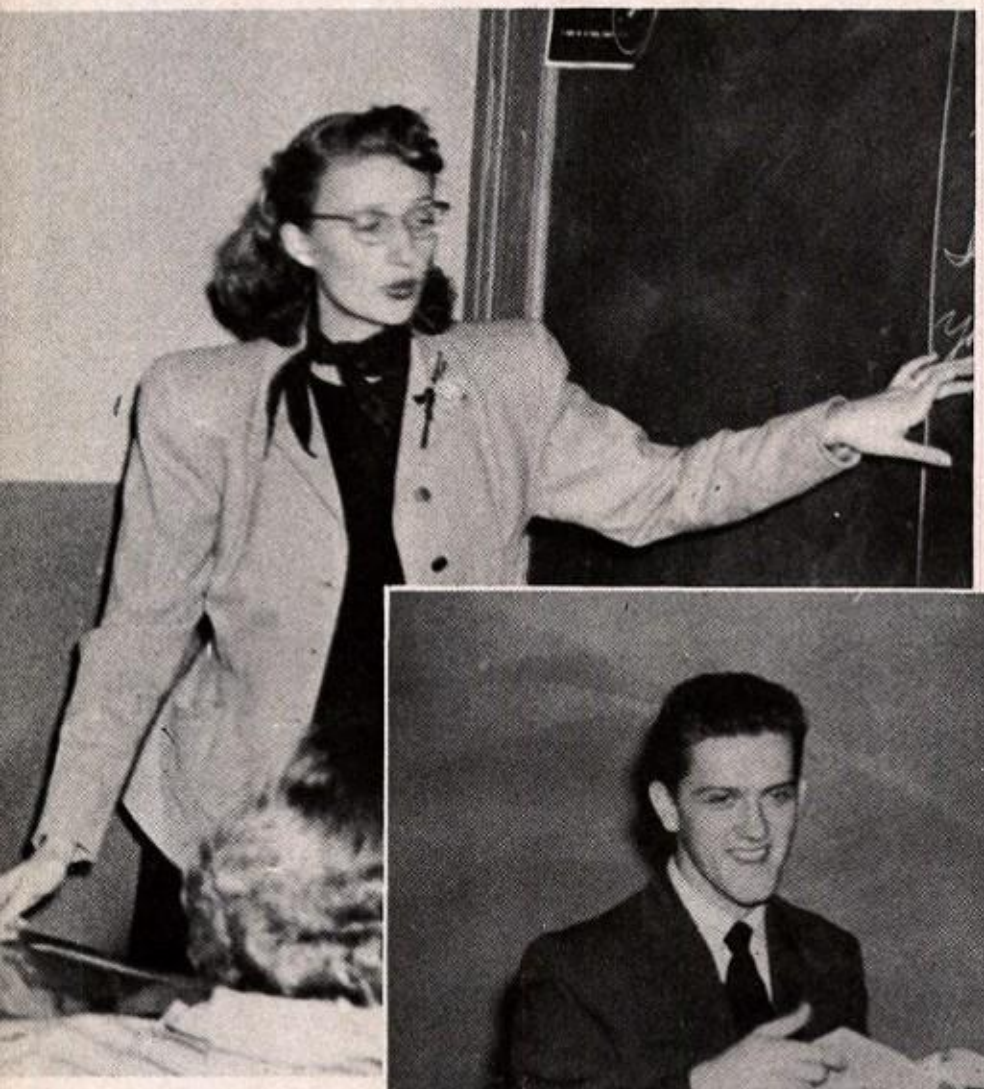
Sonnets, essays, grammar and themes . . .

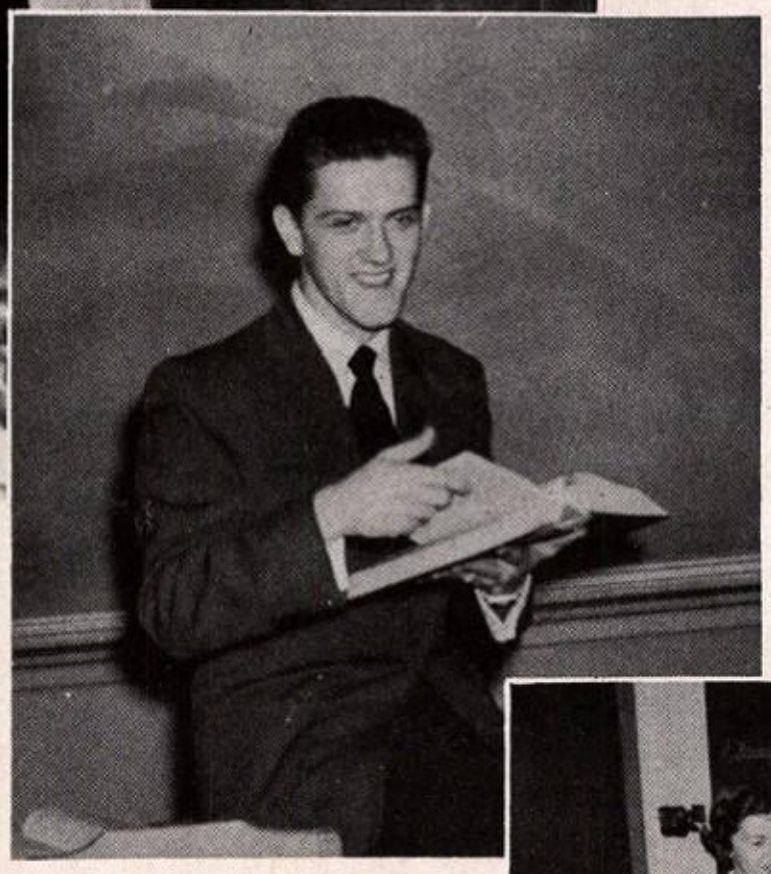
We use paper by the reams.

ENGLISH

Can't get away from it. Nope! From first grade up to twelfth, no matter what the course—there's always English.

The seniors this year as in previous years have enjoyed (?) writing sonnets, some of which were entered for acceptance in the National High School Poetry Anthology. Radio scripts for student broadcasts at WGCB and the projects for the different classes all require a background of grammar and vocabulary. More English!





Mrs. Gloria Young, B.A. (now on a leave of absence), explains the conjugation of the tenses.

Charles J. Revtyak, B.S., substitute teacher in the department, seems to be enjoying this particular phase of English.

Six weeks' marks in Mrs. Jackowick's little black book await their anxious owners.

Marie Keeports, B.A., M.A., in addition to her teaching, is junior class advisor and director of the junior play.

Naomi Myers, B.S., clarifies the present difficulty in English grammar.

The anxiously awaited day of book reports! This junior doesn't seem to be having any trouble.

LOWER LEFT: The more they do in class the less home work they have. RIGHT: What's this? A student teacher! Learning anything, fellows?

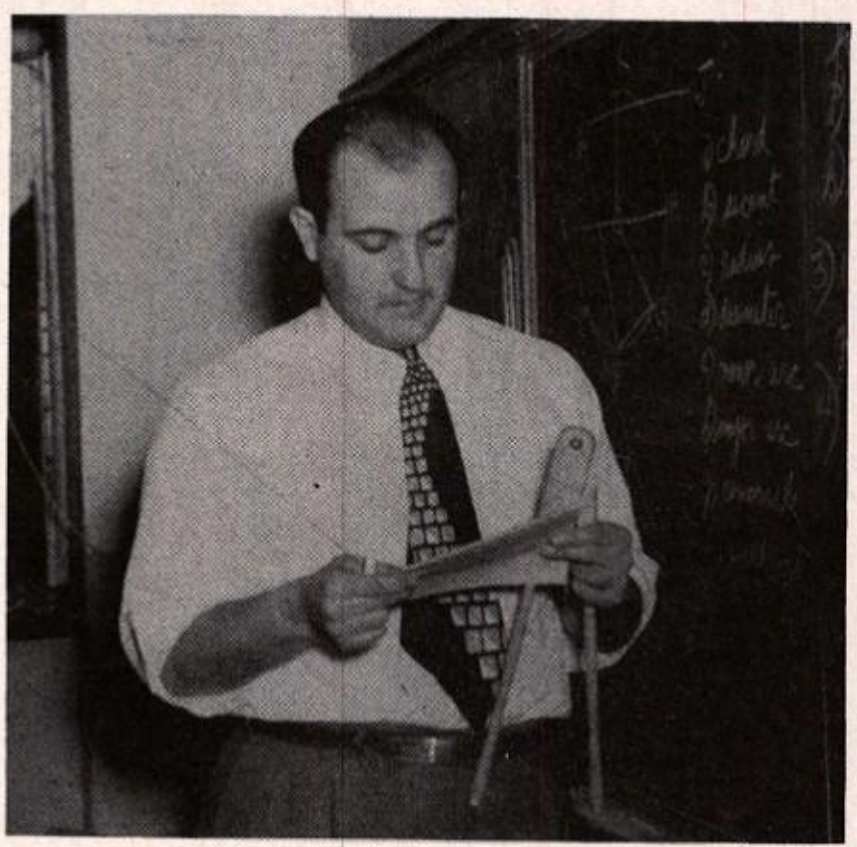
Solving for x is the current task.

"Who has the answer?" the teacher asks.

MATHEMATICS

Mathematics! The very word causes various reactions; a wrinkled nose . . . an interested expression . . . a gleam in the eye . . . or even a grin or a giggle.

Hard? Yes, math usually requires a little extra effort but it is a useful and important subject. Now don't get the idea that the students in math class keep their noses strictly to the grindstone. Amid exams and classwork they frequently find time for relaxation—sometimes at not such an opportune moment.

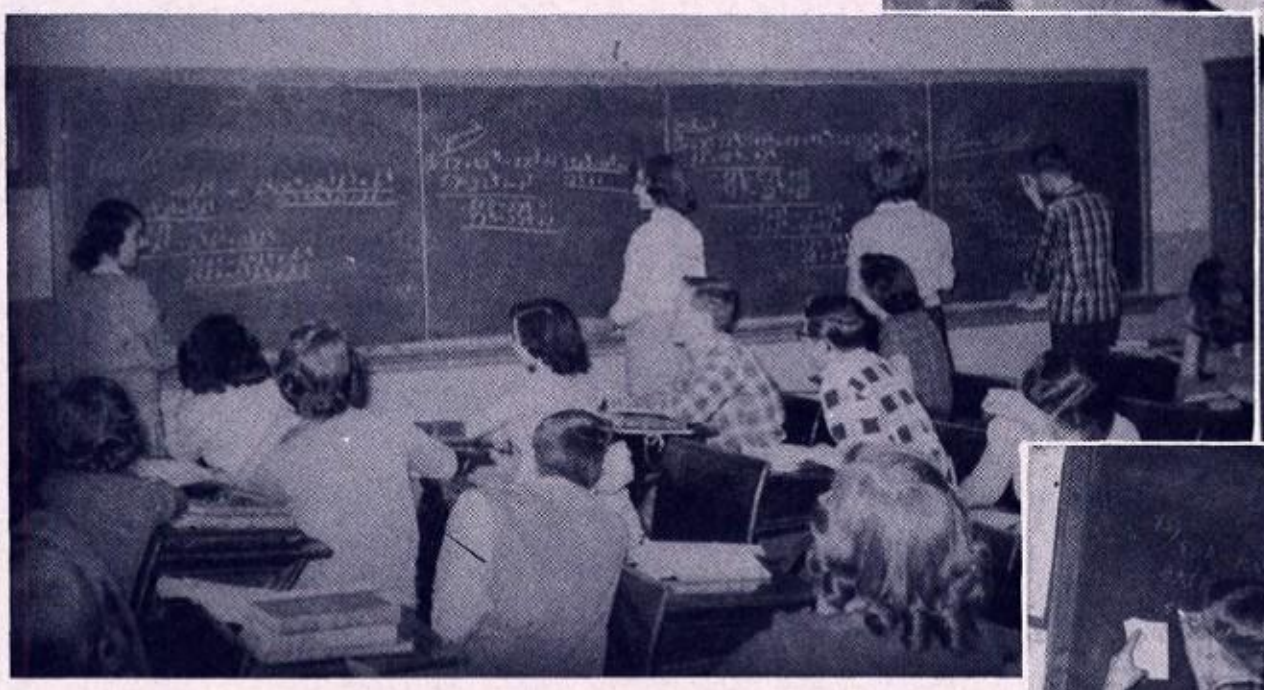


David S. Ziegler, B.A., puts a test on the board for his plane geometry class.

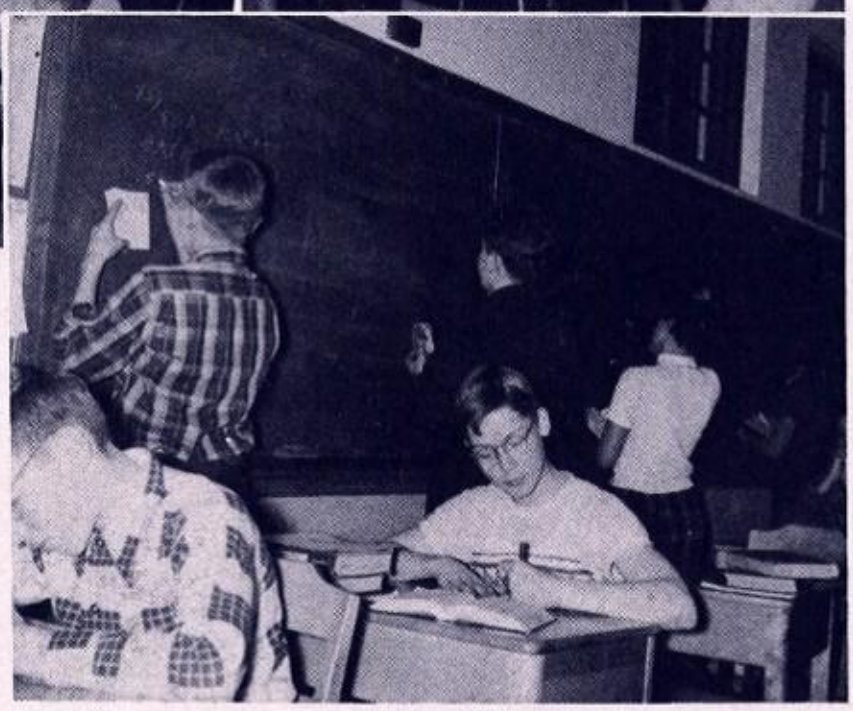
Mrs. Elesta K. Foust, B.A., who has helped out as a substitute teacher many times, is again a regular faculty member. She was girls' guidance counselor in her earlier years at R.L.H.S.

The current math problems seem to be keeping these freshman girls busy.

John R. Beckley, B.A., after three years of teaching physics and chemistry, was transferred this year to the math department.

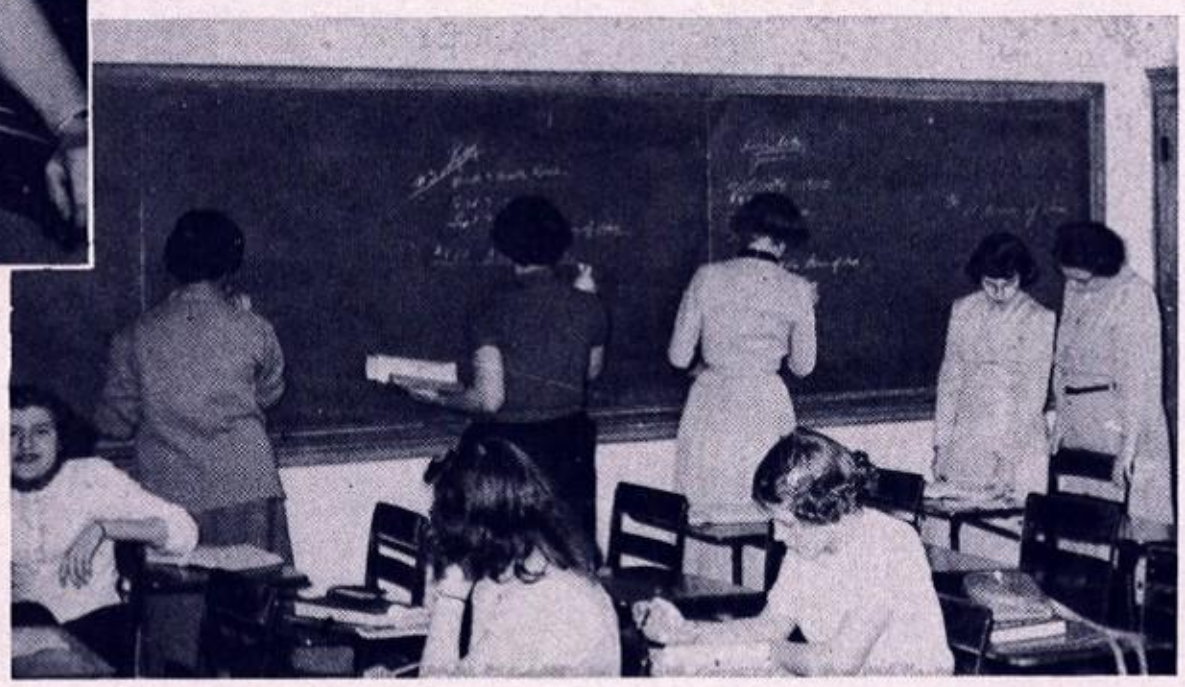


10A algebra students tackle some of their more difficult problems.



The 9A's put their home work on the board for Mr. Ziegler's approval.

Bessie V. Reiver, B.A., M.S., boasts one of the longest teaching records at Red Lion High.



Equations, word problems, and just plain arithmetic provide ample assignments.

Ibi est and parlez-vous

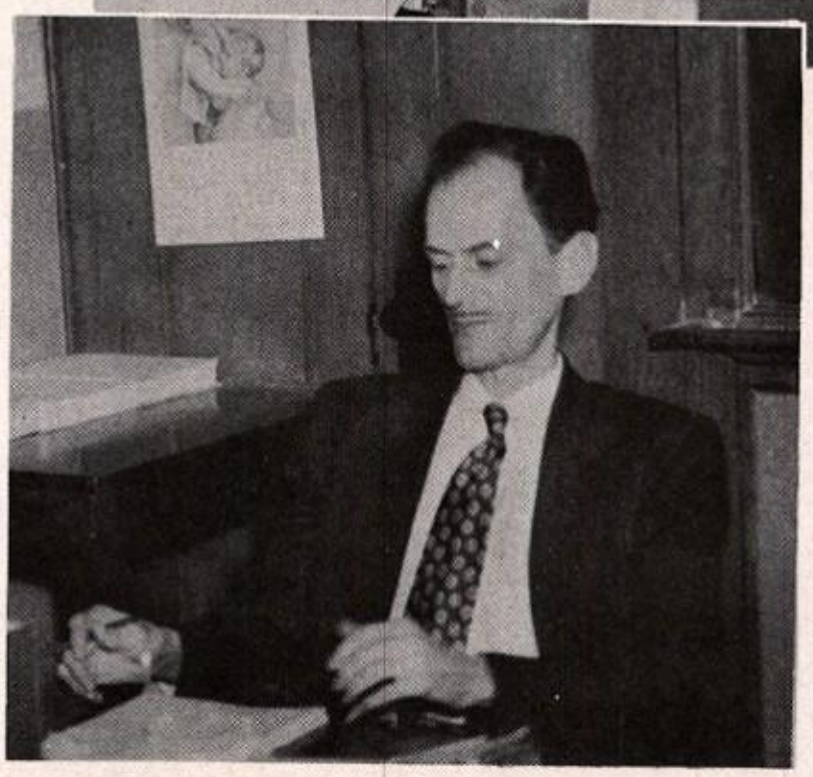
Create problems for me and you.

LANGUAGES

Besides English, R. L. H. S. boasts two other languages, French and Latin. Freshman and sophomore Latinists study in 205 and on the floor below, one door to the right, is 102, the French room where the juniors and seniors learn parler francais.

Many students take a language for their own enjoyment while for others it is a must for higher education. Future years when memories of school are many, some of the keenest are scattered words and phrases (frequently mutilated) of Latin and French.



Helen E. Clevenger, B.S., M.A., Latin and English teacher, checks yearbook material between classes.

Francis C. Miller, B.A., pauses momentarily while teaching grammar, literature, and vocabulary in his French and English classes.

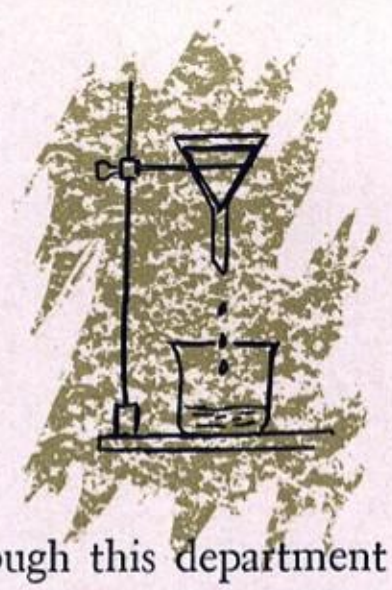
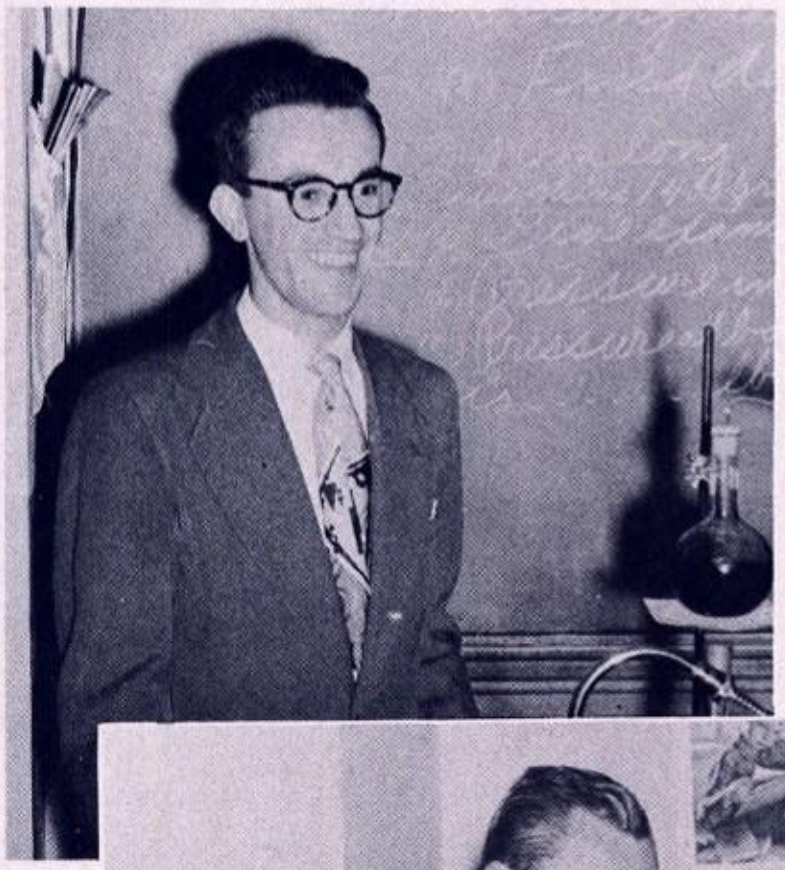
In this place of bottles and gases

We have spent many enjoyable classes.

SCIENCE



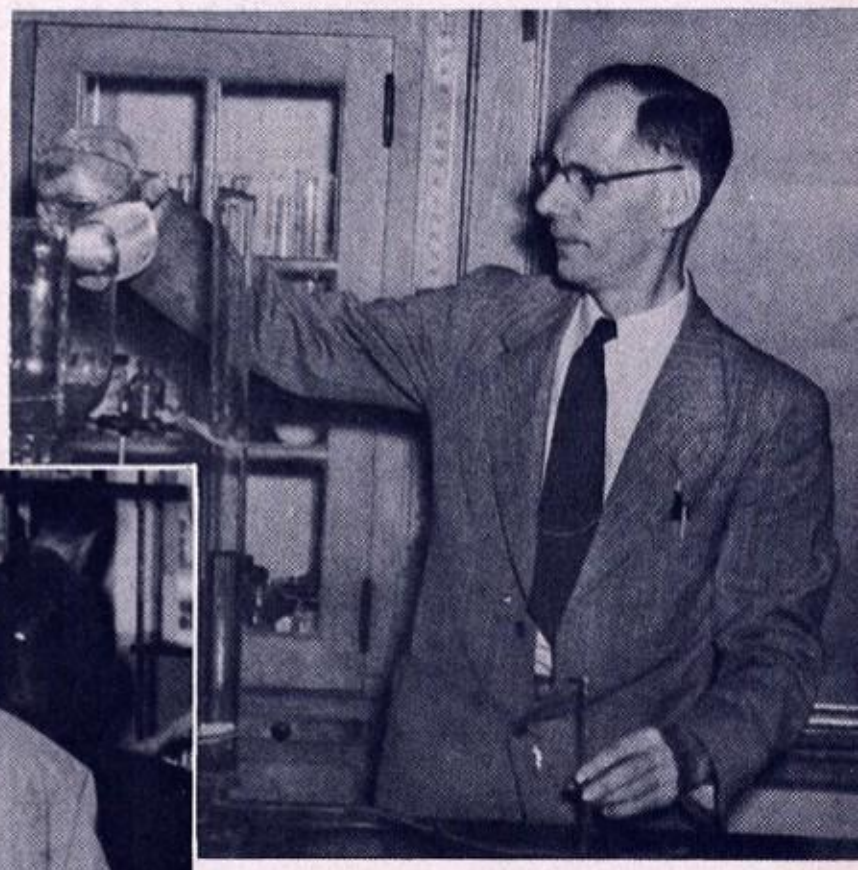
The students' career through this department starts in the freshman year with general science, the study of matter and the universe. A glass enclosed bee-hive and bottles of mysterious specimens keep the tenth grade biologists busy, and physics takes them through a fascinating study of commonplace knowledge. With this background the seniors find themselves ready for life among the test tubes, Bunsen burners, and acids. While the students perform experiments the teacher is crossing his fingers that no unexpected explosion tosses shattered glass and students about the room.



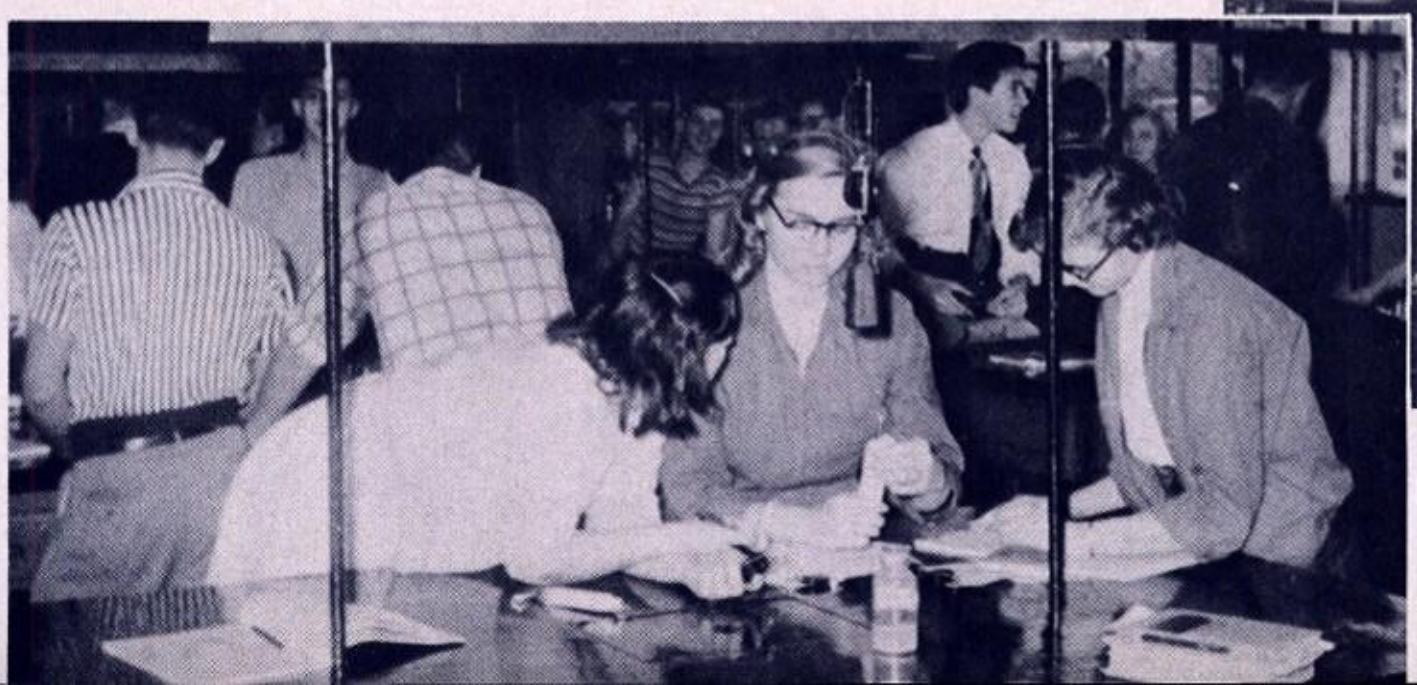
Freeland Shaffer, B.S., explains the current chemistry problem.

N. Eugene Shoemaker, B.S., M.Ed., is quite interested in this new aquarium.

Daniel Myers, B.A., M.A., puts on a scientific demonstration for the benefit of the freshmen.



Just another physics experiment for the 11B's.



Famous landmarks from east to west

Plus famous men equals a history test.

SOCIAL STUDIES

History books never change, they just increase. News and problems of today are brought to the classroom through magazines and newspapers. Spirited debates and arguments are provoked often over present universal problems.

On the practical side, a student often is induced to study harder when he thinks of the cars, refrigerators and mink coats to be won on quiz programs just by knowing, say . . . the first U. S. president. All jokes aside, to talk intelligently on the problems of today, a student definitely should know the outcomes of the problems of yesterday.

Paul I. Hangen, B.A., delves deeply into the why and wherefore of the American government in his civics class.

Richard H. Baldwin, B.A., M.Ed., finds pleasure in this momentary break from his busy schedule.

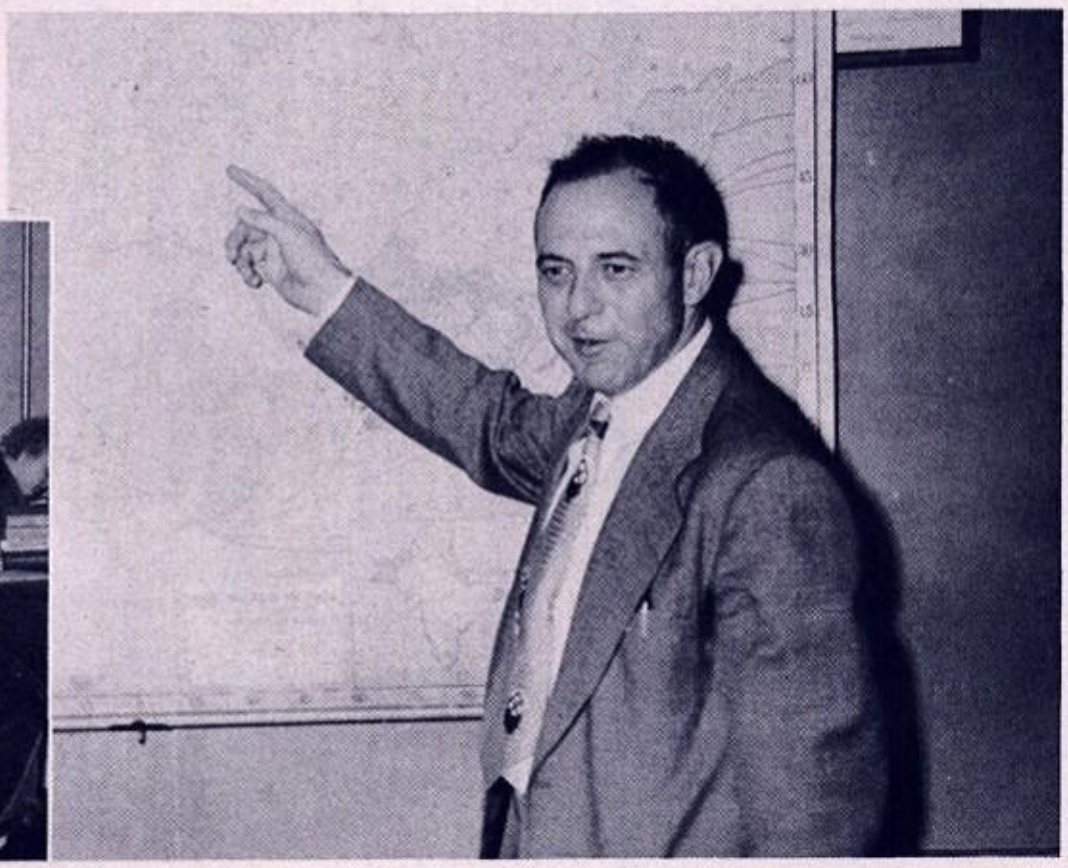
World events are brought into the classroom through the American Observer.

Senior high students portray the Democratic Way of Life in P.O.D. assembly.

Mrs. Hilda Jackowick, B.A., English and history teacher, was called to the door for this surprise shot. To Jimmy! Best wishes- It has been such a pleasure to have you in class - Hilda C. Jackowick

Clair A. Frits, B.S., M.Ed., discusses current problems of democracy.

Harold Myers, B.S., M.Ed., explains the world's situation to his class.



The 10C's tackle a history problem.

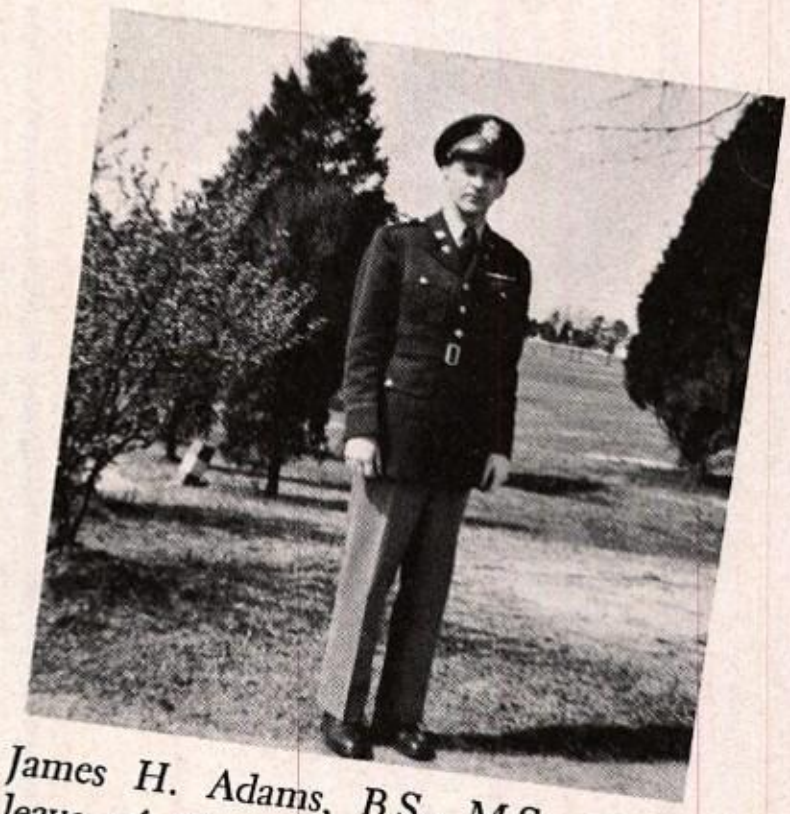
People, lands, faces and places . . .

Here we study all the races.

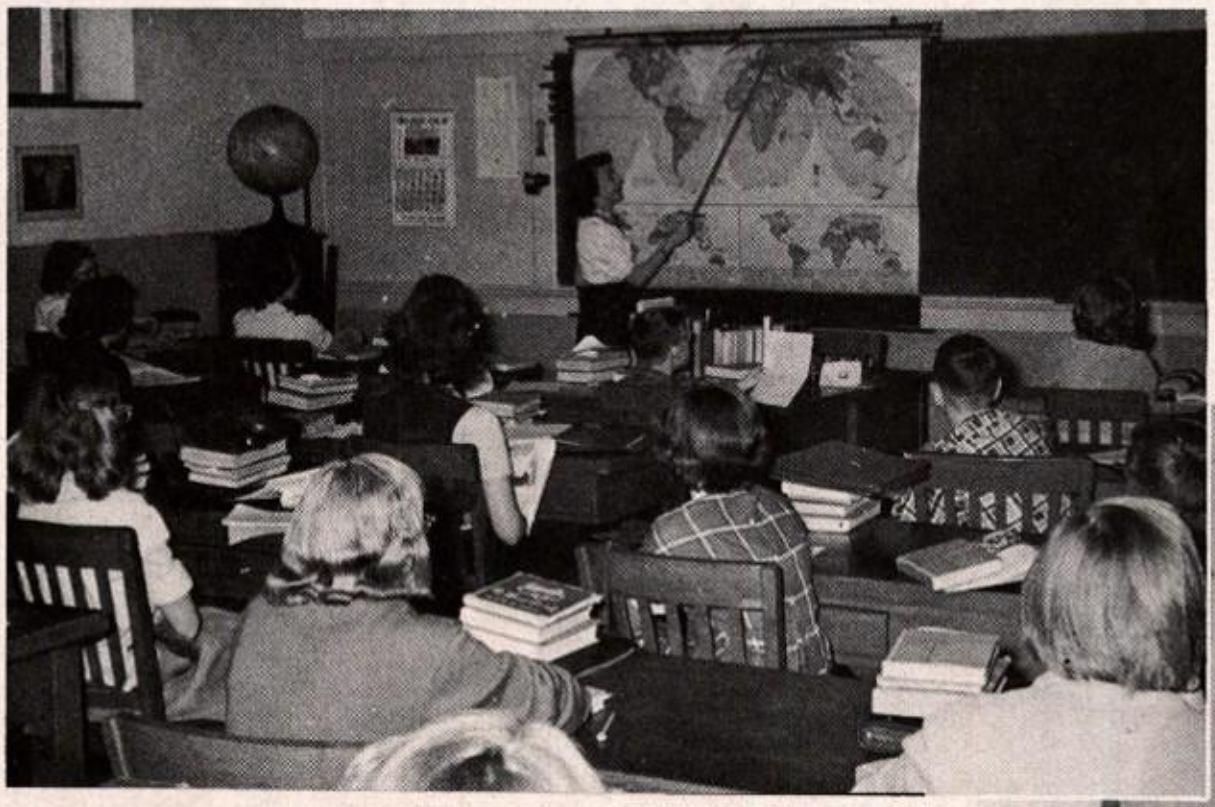
GEOGRAPHY

Most people have at one time or another the yen to roam, the longing for adventure, but very few ever do anything about it. The majority just dream about the exotic isle of Hawaii, lands south of the border, Texas and them thar cowboy states, California or Florida, the rich man's paradise.

At R.L.H.S. a tour was organized and opened to all seventh and eighth grade pupils. Departing from bus terminal number 110 these tourists visit all those dreamed about places. On these trips they not only see spots of interest but they learn about the resources, the inhabitants, their customs, and just everything. The only baggage needed is a travel guide, better known as a geography book.



James H. Adams, B.S., M.S., on a leave of absence, served the greater part of the term with the U. S. Army.



A stop-off in Northern Europe for these eighth grade geographers.

Phyllis A. Mengel, B.S., a newcomer to R.L.H.S., took over the geography department until Mr. Adams returned.

These helpful workers the school employs

To prepare the meals that students enjoy.

CAFETERIA

Mrs. A. Smith, cashier, accepts the money which Darvin willingly gives in return for his meal.

Much credit to those who prepare the meals—Mrs. G. Wallick, Mrs. A. Kunkle, Mrs. E. Kunkle, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. R. Warfel.

The empty stomachs of these Orientation Day visitors keep them from protesting over the crowdedness of the cafe.

Something new is always in attraction, something different is an even greater one. The old auditorium converted into the new cafeteria was quite an added convenience to the students of Red Lion. No more standing in line (outside, that is), no more grabbing of coats and running out of the building to see who's first; now they just grab their wallets and run a shorter distance. All joking aside, the students really do appreciate the new cafeteria.

The janitors work to keep the school neat,

By cleaning the rooms and controlling the heat.

MAINTENANCE

Halls need sweeping . . . windows need cleaning . . . lights don't work . . . perhaps a broken pipe. The prevention and the cure are the problems of the five-man maintenance crew. Records have not revealed the who, when, and where of the first janitors, but then as now, it would be impossible to record all the tasks in a normal day's work.

ORGANIZATIONS

Traditions old and suggestions new . . .

The student council carries them through.

STUDENT COUNCIL

Mary Ann Greenawalt, student council president, presents to Coach Nitchkey the recordings of the pep rally preceding the West York game.

Football pep rallies kept the student council busy the first two months of the year. The climax was the parade and rally at the Square preceding the big battle with West York, the juniors and freshmen making history by winning the float contest.

Drawing up rules for the home room Christmas decoration contest was the next matter of importance during the pre-holiday season. The winning plaques are now in senior room 205 and freshman room 101.

A new venture, Hush Week, was a great success in February. For five days the hails and hellos were grins and nods—most unusual, but definitely worth repeating.

Each month the Hilltop faithfully appears;

It has existed in Red Lion for twenty-nine years.

HILLTOP

Today students recognize the Hilltop as an assured publication, but it was the interest and efforts of past classes which made this paper possible. As far back as 1923, some form of newspaper was edited. In its infancy the Hilltop was patterned after magazines and was published only on special occasions such as Commencement and Christmas; but as years passed individuals showed so much interest that it was installed as a tri-weekly edition, and changed later to a monthly. Highlighting on news, feature and sports, the Hilltop informs students of past, current and future events at Red Lion High School.

LION

Editor-in-chief Shirley checks home room lists with Kathryn following a morning session of group picture taking.

Work on the yearbook started last summer when the make-up staff drew the blueprints. Then early in September when the ringing of bells brought back the students to school, the other staffs began to function.

The busy staff took time from its full schedule to write the script for the senior assembly. The program had the same theme as the yearbook—Fiftieth Anniversary.

On the job till 3:40, and occasionally later, the staff shaped up the final copy. The typists, the photographers, the writers and the business staff all did their part. Eventually the work, the worries, the tears and joy were over. The Lion itself is reward enough for the staff.

High standards are required, you see,

For the members of this society.

N. H. S.

Life can represent a race, a race to make a successful living. A place where a race ends is called a goal. There are always goal keepers to reward the participants. Such is the National Honor Society which rewards the students for their citizenship traits during their school years.

To become a member of this organization is indeed an honor and must be held in high esteem. Character, scholarship, service and leadership are the four main objectives of the National Honor Society.

Lighting symbolic candles is a part of the induction ceremony for N.H.S. members.

Mental ability plus sports participation

Are qualifications for this organization.

N. A. S. S.

One of the highest honors that can be bestowed upon any athlete in high school is that of being elected to the National Athletic Scholarship Society. Originating in 1928, this honorary association's purpose is to raise the standard of scholarship among athletes of participating schools.

Eligibility is based not only on participation in sports, but also on scholastic ratings. The individual must have received his varsity letter and must be in the upper half of his class. He must also set a good example of sportsmanship and citizenship.

This year two seniors and one junior were admitted to the society. Three members of the class of '52 had been elected the previous year.

J. R. C. COUNCIL

5c—10c—15c. . . . First comes soliciting, and then the better liked task—counting the contributions.

A very active organization in Red Lion High School is the Junior Red Cross Council. Two representatives from each home room meet weekly with their advisor, and carry on the many activities requested of them.

The council began its year by collecting approximately one hundred and thirty-five dollars through 100% membership in the annual school drive. Also on the agenda were the overseas gift boxes, the utility bags and sewing kits for veterans' hospitals, favors for local hospitals, writing portfolios, and a picture book—all projects being completed this year by club members.

These boys gently guide the children each day

To cross the street on their merry way.

SAFETY PATROL

Every study period before lunch excitement is heard in the halls as the junior policemen leave to serve. They are on the job through snow storms, rain or fair weather.

Approximately twenty boys patrol the dangerous intersections of town. While on duty they wear symbolic badges which give them authority to direct the children (and the older generation) safely to and from school. It has been said that every rose has its thorn and so it is in this case; the thorn—responsibility; the rose—early dismissal.

Safety in the school makes a safer and happier community. This is an important factor and much co-operation has been shown throughout the years.

STAGE CREW

Plays are successful only if the actors play their parts well, but the stage settings and the various properties are also very helpful. Responsibility for the latter falls to Mr. Landis' crew of seven.

These young laborers, with the aid of their hammers and saws, construct necessary props for school presentations. Lighting and sound effects, as well as painting, also are part of their work. The boys accept responsibilities wholeheartedly and their co-operation helps make possible the success of any play.

DRAMATIC CLUB

A Thursday morning feature. . . . Betty and accompanist prepare for solo.

Dramatics has been an early-starting, never-ending parade at Red Lion High School. The present club, one of the largest in the school, had as its forerunner the small Talent Club. In the 1930's, under the name of Gold and Black, this early group held weekly programs consisting of short skits, readings, and reports on the lines of famous actors and actresses.

The club program today is similar to that of its predecessor. However, because of the large membership, much work is done by groups, each of which is responsible for entertainment on an assigned Thursday. In addition, the members help with Christmas, Easter and other programs, either as actors or on committees.

MAGIC CLUB

The younger set have always found it entertaining and amusing to play jokes on others. In R. L. H. S., when a boy reaches junior high he has the opportunity to satisfy this urge by joining a group of magicians. On account of the large number wishing admittance, membership, formerly open to all, is now limited to the younger set and a few veteran members.

Usually it requires more than one Thursday meeting for the prestidigitators to master the magic feats so smoothly executed by their advisor. Following his demonstration, the boys have a week to think over it; then comes discussion, and the boys try their luck. If necessary the demonstration is repeated.

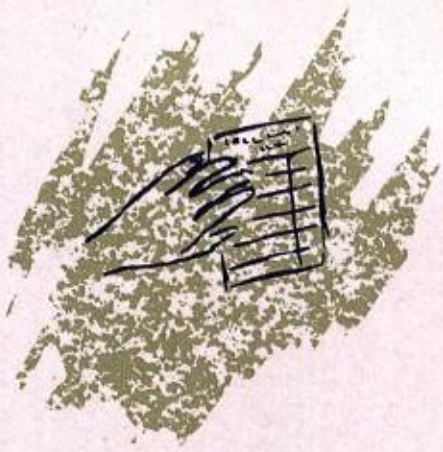
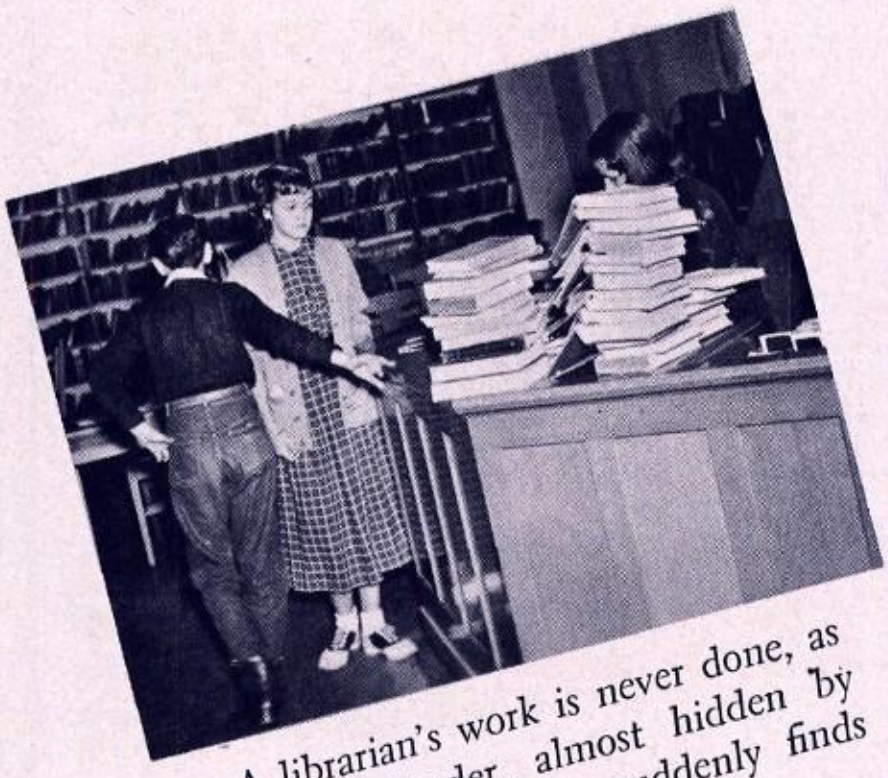
LIBRARY CLUB





A librarian's work is never done, as Nancy Snyder, almost hidden by the pile of books, suddenly finds out.

To aid the many students who visit the library daily in finding the right books, and to assist with the mending and repairing of books, a group of student librarians was organized. These junior and senior high girls are coached by Miss Skinner in the fundamentals of library work, such as the use of the card catalogue, and vertical files. They also decorate their bulletin boards with eye-catching displays. Since the beginning of its existence several years ago, the organization has helped to establish a more orderly, enjoyable and inviting sport for reading in leisure time.

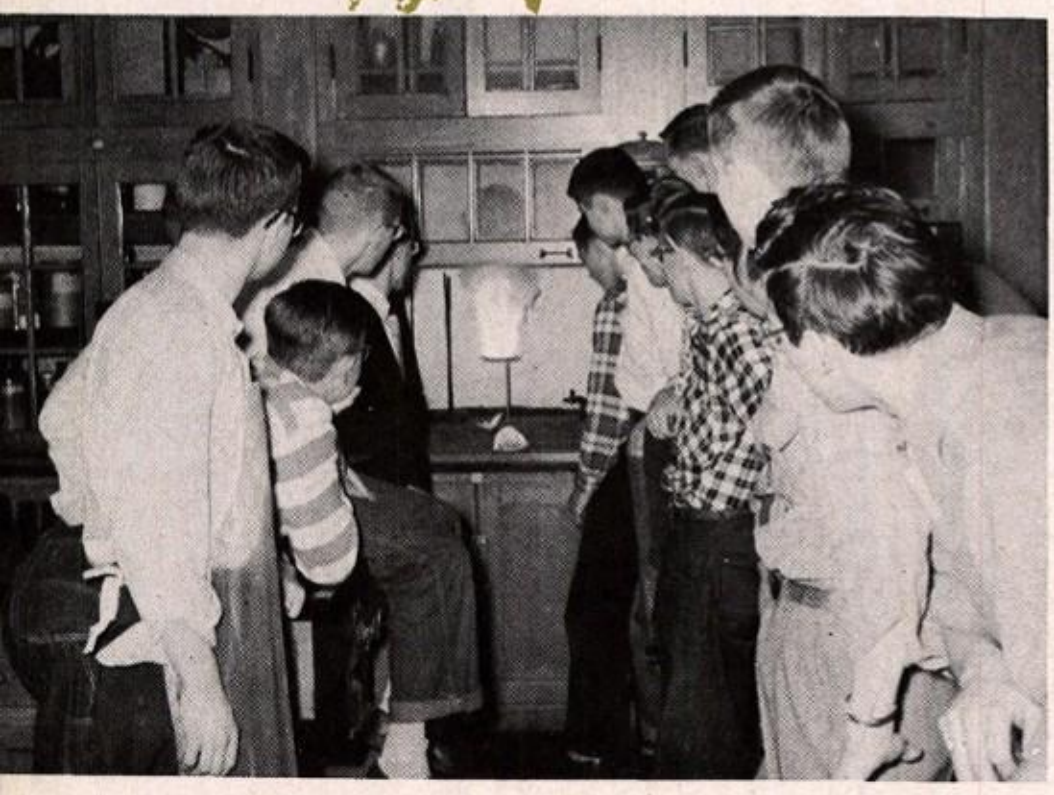
CHEMISTRY CLUB



One of the newly organized clubs at Red Lion High this year is the Chemistry Club, appealing to those students interested in the field of science. Under the supervision of Mr. Shaffer the sixteen members learned the fundamentals of laboratory work and tested their newly acquired knowledge by performing experiments. Although membership was open to all senior chemistry students, the weaker sex was not represented.

BIOLOGY CLUB

This year marks the fourth anniversary for the Biology Club, first organized in the fall of 1949 under the sponsorship of Mr. William Smith. In purpose it bears resemblance to an even earlier group, the Nature Club of the early thirties.

The Thursday morning club periods are used for lectures and research on pertinent subjects, but that's only a part of the present day program. With their enthusiastic advisor and travel agent, Mr. Shoemaker, the club members have scheduled trips to Washington, the State Farm Show and other points of interest.

F.H.A. club periods yield many unusual contests such as this. The girls push pennies off the cup with their noses . . . you might call them penny-pushers.

If a way to a man's heart is through his stomach, the F.H.A. gals should have no trouble in selecting a spouse. They have the opportunity to gain further knowledge in cooking, sewing and homemaking in a club quite similar to one organized about 1920 under the name of Needlecraft Club.

During their club periods these girls plan and prepare quick snacks for special occasions. F.H.A. sponsored dances and programs prove the fine efforts put forth by these homemakers, who, as members of the national club, proudly wear the F.H.A. symbolic pins.

ROD AND GUN CLUB

Another organization making its first appearance in Red Lion High School this year is the Rod and Gun Club. The group is made up of forty-three senior high boys interested in knowing more of fishing and hunting.

Being quite enthusiastic over starting a club like this, they have been learning new techniques and have traded family hunting and fishing secrets. Their discussions have covered such subjects as the art of reloading shells, fly tying, plug making and casting. One session on the types of hunting dogs and their training was of special interest to member hunters.

Talking on the subject of fishing, Bob explains the different flies needed to hook the "one that got away."

MIXED CHORUS

Every Monday morning strains of beautiful music resound through the halls as the Senior High Mixed Chorus holds its weekly practice. With an enrollment of fifty-nine, these songbirds take an active part in the functions of our school.

The organization has been prominent in R. L. H. S. since 1930, when it was combined from the Boys' and Girls' Glee Clubs. In its early days, this group presented operettas, but full schedules of both students and faculty discontinued such musicals. This year the chorus exhibited its accomplishments at the annual Night of Music.

DANCE BAND

Members of the band catch their breath between numbers and watch proceedings on stage.

When one hears the strains of "Stairway to the Stars," he can be sure it is none other than "the best band in the land"—Red Lion High School's own dance band. This organization consists of fourteen senior high school members working under the direction of the school music supervisor, Mr. Surplus. It was to the music of this group that the faculty, students and alumni danced at the various social activities during the past year.

The band could also be found providing the gay and romantic atmosphere for community activities and social affairs of other schools. Included in their schedule was the Christmas Dance at Dover, the Glen Rock Holiday Dance, the Youth Center Christmas Dance, Stewartstown's Alumni Association Dance, and a dance for the class of '52 at the York Hospital.

ORCHESTRA

It seems as if some instrumental organization or other was always included in the school curriculum. Actually it all began in 1924 when an orchestra of fourteen members, organized under the direction of Prof. Charles N. Gates, made its debut at a meeting of the High School Literary Society. Right on up through the years there has been a group of talented youngsters to keep the organization alive.

The efforts of the weekly practice sessions were proudly displayed at the junior play as they entertained the audience during intermission. Appearing later at the Welfare Program, they gave the spectators a taste of what work twenty amateur musicians under Mr. Surplus' baton can do.

GIRLS' CHORUS

One of the largest organizations in high school is the choral group with a membership of approximately eighty-nine. Having been introduced at the school at an earlier date, the organization was discontinued until 1949, when Mrs. Adams reorganized the group and it has continued until the present. The activities of this chorus are limited because of the large number of participants, but perhaps the most important is the contribution to the Night of Music program.

Have special harmony to please the ear.

VOCALETTES

There's harmony in 109 when Thursday's club period rolls around.

Organized in 1950 by several ambitious junior girls, the Vocalettes are only in the third year of their existence. The Boys' Music Club, begun the same year, was largely responsible for the idea, for the girls did not relish being outdone by the opposite sex and promptly formed their own counterpart. Due to the interest shown, this vocal organization was installed as a weekly club.

This year the group is more than triple its original size. Consequently its appearances have been limited. At times the group has been represented by only a few members selected by their director, Mrs. Adams, for the particular occasion. Numerous assemblies, the Night of Music and Commencement were on the list of activities for the season.

JUNIOR HIGH CHORUS

Each Monday morning at eight thirty-five sharp, the stage of the auditorium overflows with boys and girls. The parade of oncomers seems to be endless. Finally everyone is seated and the show begins. Forth from all those tiny mouths comes music, well-blended and pleasing to the ear.

Who are these very talented students? Why, of course—they're Miss Spangler's protegés, all of them pupils in grades seven, eight or nine.

The major part of their practice is directed towards their big performance in the Night of Music program, and at various times individuals from the group appear on other school programs.

"Ready, sing," and this talented group responds to Miss Spangler's hard work and efforts.

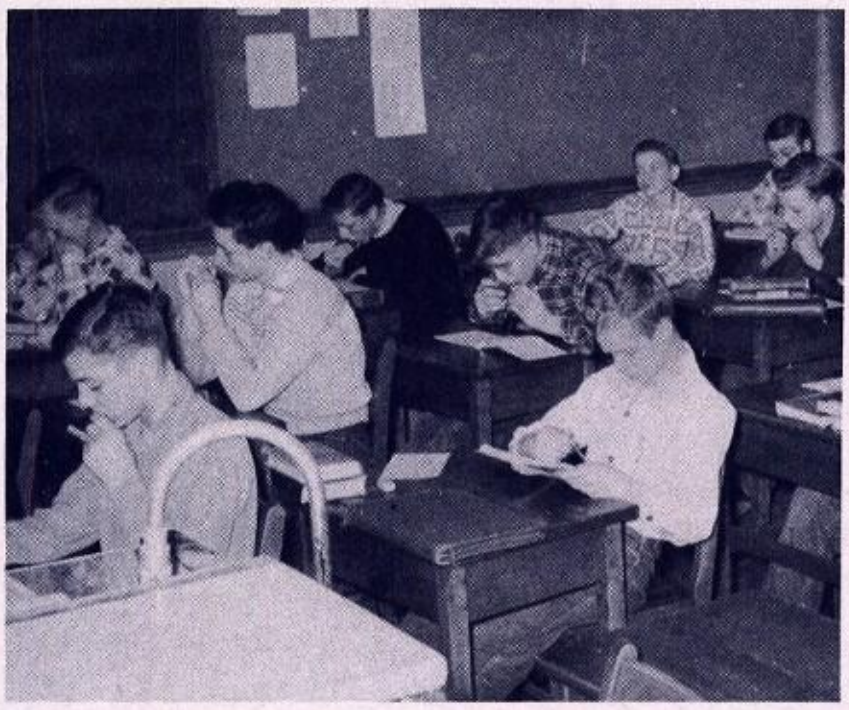
BOYS' MUSIC CLUB



The boys seem to be busy at work with their music. Uh-oh, one fellow's snitchin'!

This organization was initiated by Mr. Daniel Myers a few years ago, and is still under his direction. The only requirement for membership is to enjoy music.

In the regular Thursday meeting periods the boys learn about the various parts of instruments, and they demonstrate vocal and instrumental abilities. A special feature of this year's program is the addition of a harmonica band, which will probably be a permanent part of the club, judging from the interest shown.

A memorable year at R.L.H.S. was 1933 when Miss Hetrick organized the first band. It was quite a spectacle during half-time at basketball games to see the members come parading down the floor, dressed in pert caps and flapping black capes with bright gold lining, everyone in step.

Today, although the uniforms differ considerably, the ever-popular band is still in full swing, still in step. Highlighting the between-half periods of football games, participating in radio broadcasts, forensic competition and school programs, these musicians, under the direction of Robert W. Surplus, have continued to live up to the fine reputation of their organization. It has been a busy season, but with the grand finale of the Night of Music the uniforms will be put away till next year.

SPORTS

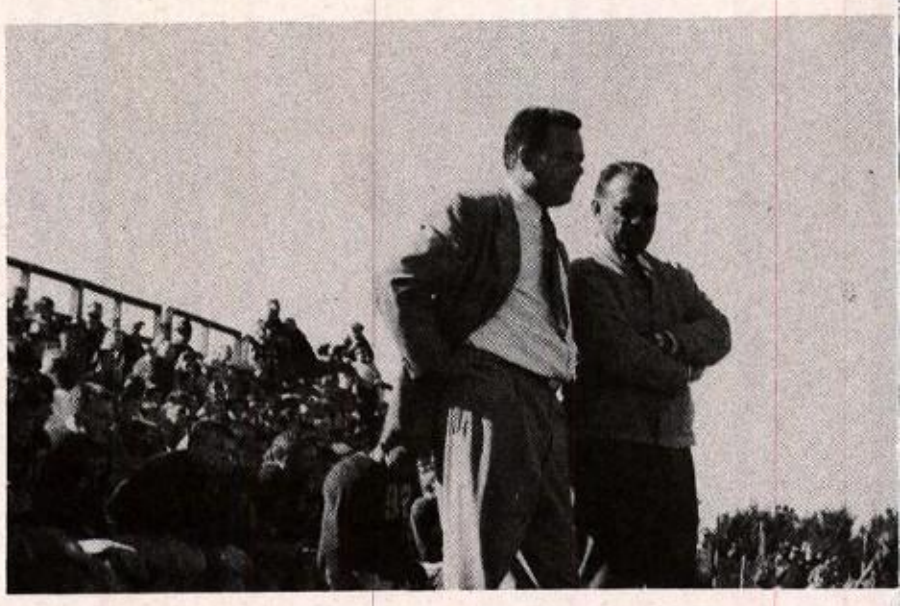
September brings the spirit of football,

A truly great game and enjoyed by all.

FOOTBALL

This favorite fall sport got its start at R.L.H.S. in 1934 under coaches Nitchkey and Frits. This year, still hard at work, Coach Nitchkey entered his roaring Lions in the Conferences of Roses for another year.

Although the season could not be termed entirely successful in scores—4 wins and 5 losses—it represented spirit on the part of the players who, whether battling teams of equal strength or teams by which they were greatly outweighed, never gave up. They gave spectators their money's worth of thrills and chills.



Coaches study the situation on the gridiron. At the end of the season Mr. Nitchkey, head football coach for the past fifteen years, handed over his title to Mr. Yost. Good luck, Mr. Yost!

CHEERLEADERS

Always on the job—whether it be a football game in rain or shine or a basketball game with a losing score—these girls provide the necessary spirit to keep up the morale of the students and teams. What would the school do without 'em? Their bright uniforms alone are enough to make even the old folks start cheering—and many do.

The origin of this colorful organization dates back quite a few years to the real beginning of activities. Mrs. Bowers, who this year returned to the commercial department, was one of the squad's first advisors. Last year, under direction of Mrs. Flinchbaugh, a cheerleading club was organized and from this group girls are chosen for the main squads. These girls practice hard, with hopes of someday being chosen to be members of the varsity squad, a much coveted honor for any cheerleader.

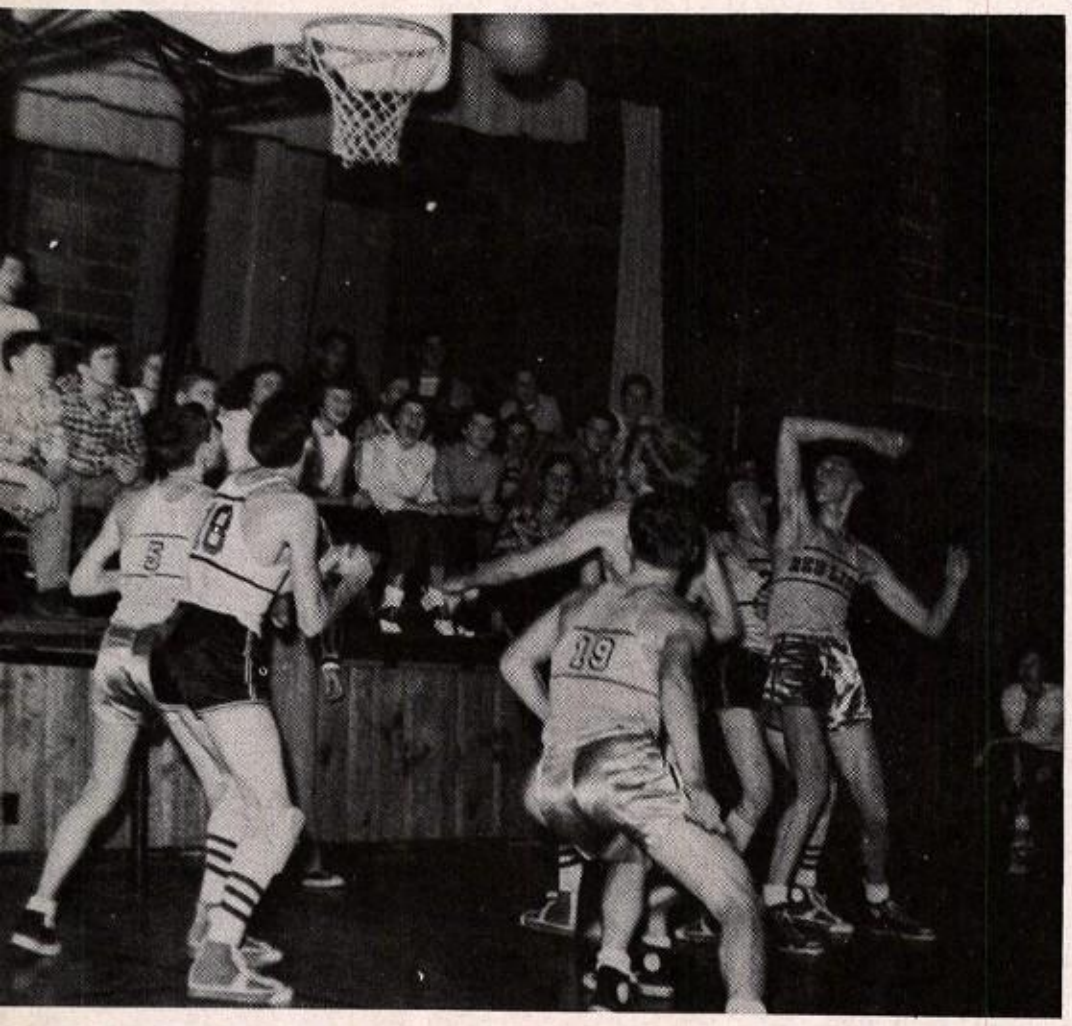
BASKETBALL



Sad expression of the cheerleader in the background indicates that New Oxford's shot looks good.

Varsity basketball entered Red Lion in 1923 when the school helped form the York County Scholastic League. Coaching at that time was Walter Rothensies. A very good team gave the Lions the championship of the league that year.

An exciting 1951–2 season kept the fans on pins and needles. Games were won and lost by one and two points margins. No one can forget the thrilling game with Dallastown where an overflowing crowd saw the Lions win by three points. This game gave the Lions possession of the Northern Division crown. They went on and took the league championship for the first time since 1938 by defeating Manchester, winner of the Southern Division. Continuing in the play-offs, the Lions defeated Ephrata by a one-point margin, but eventually were stopped by Muhlenberg Township.

VOLLEYBALL

There is never a dull moment when it comes to sports, and there is always some sport or another in action throughout the school year. Sandwiched between two seemingly more important sports is volleyball.

Introduced in 1937 but lasting only a short period, volleyball was again put on the schedule in 1949. Under the direction of Mr. Beckley the boys competed with other schools. Taken over by Mr. Yost in 1950 the team entered the P.I.A.A. tournament in which they also participated this year.

Yes, volleyball may be one of the minor sports but it certainly affords to all participants a great deal of fun.

BASEBALL

When the great national sport of baseball steps into the spotlight, bats, spikes and mitts can be seen everywhere. At R. L. H. S. the sport has been popular since 1906, and league participation dates back to 1927.

The 1951 season's record may not be too impressive, but there was never a dull moment during baseball season. There was Sheldon who played ball the hard way without gloves or spikes; and Mervin who tried to tag players out without the ball; and then there was the time the team got lost en route to Manchester . . . and with it all plenty of good hard work.

Red Lion started its track history way back in 1919, with an interclass track meet. In 1926 it sent a team to the first York County track meet, and has continued to enter the meet ever since.

The 1951 track team first tested its skill in a triangular meet with Delta and North York, in which Red Lion took second place. In a separate meet with North York, the Lions likewise came in behind, although firsts were taken by Golden in the mile, Weigel in the broad jump, Stine in the high jump, and Paley in the 880 yard run. The meet with Biglerville rated a tie for first place, with Paley and Golden again tops and Stine tying for first. In the county meet, firsts were lacking and R. L. H. S. came out in third place.

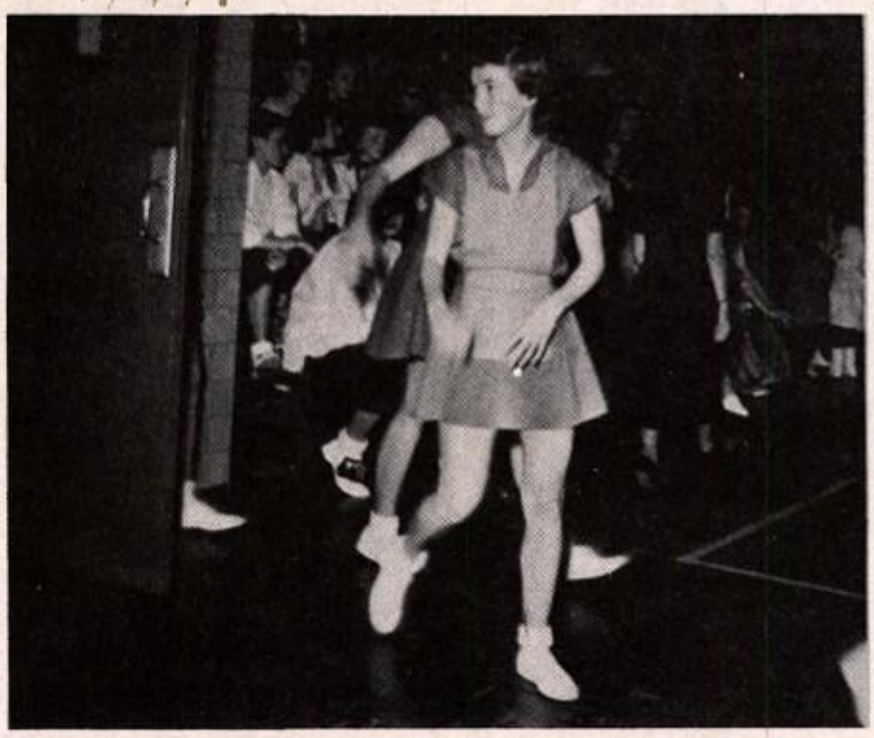
G. A. A.



It's back to the court for Bernice Paley . . . time for another quarter in the fast and furious game with the alumnae.

Even as early as the twenties, due to special interest in athletics, the Girls' Reserves were formed. This organization established a foothold among the activities of the school, and is now represented by our present Girls' Athletic Association.

After a year of little activity because of the incomplete gymnasium, the association reorganized and planned a schedule of sports and activities. This year's new projects included the All Star Gym Revue and Play Day. The girls also sponsored, as they annually do, the Football Frolic at which they crowned the football king selected by the members.

INTRAMURALS

The halls echo with cheers and shouts as the intramural sports program gets underway.

This year for the first time a large scale program, under the direction of Thomas Yost, was begun. In early September the main interest was football, Rooms 203 and 205 coming out on top. Soon basketball stepped into the limelight but only until the first signs of spring appeared; then shouts of "Batter up—play ball!" were heard. Besides these three sports there was competition in volleyball, shuffleboard, quoits, checkers, horseshoes and badminton.

At the close of the schedule there will be an annual award given to the winning homeroom for the entire activities schedule.

JUNIORS

Nearing the top of the ladder with one more step to go are the "Jolly Juniors." Showing a great deal of ambition in everything undertaken, the junior class, composed of one hundred forty-seven students, has had a busy year.

During the Yule season, they sponsored the annual Christmas dance which was highly successful. Prior to that, when football was the major sport, these go-getters walked away with top honors for the best float in the pep parade. Their next accomplishments were proven on February 22 and 23 when they presented their high school production.

The class of '53 possesses talents in many fields. Proof of their capability in sports is shown by the number of boys on the football, basketball, baseball, and track teams. The girls also have a good representation on the cheerleading and majorette squads.

Yes, it will be a pleasure to hand down the scepter to this class, when class day rolls around.

Beauty and the Beef

Combined fun, excitement and confusion made the junior class play a highly successful production. The discovery of Ginny's trophy, the poisoning of the football team and Foggy's love (?) for the professor's daughter—all were part of an interesting plot. Burg caused backstage fun by mistaking Glatfelter's coat for his own and taking his Friday night curtain call baggily clad.

Looking ahead with much in store

Are the hope-to-be graduates of fifty-four.

SOPHOMORES

Silly sophomores they could be called, or perhaps sophisticated, for indeed there are examples of both in this big class of '54.

To have a good time is the aim of all and a good time they do have, such as in their assembly. Just about everyone in the class participated in presenting the "Four Seasons." Chronister certainly fit the part of New Year to a tee, and those fortune tellers, wow! and the Civil War skit will be remembered for some time.

Their representation in school social affairs shows they have "get up and go." In fact sometimes they have a little too much, for they ended Hush Week with the highest percentage of talkers and consequently enjoyed writing themes on the subject of hall discipline. So look out, teachers of next year, for this gang's raring to go.

In September some two hundred and twenty students entered the halls of R. L. H. S. as members of the freshman class. To all of them this was to be an important year.

After getting lost a few times in the halls, and confusing the names of the various teachers, they finally got themselves adjusted. From then on they really began to get things rolling. They captured the coveted prize for the best float in junior high entries in the pep parade, one of their home rooms won in the Christmas decoration contest, and, believe it or not, they came out second in the Hush-Week campaign.

Living up to expectations, these vigorous students have shown true leadership. A class assembly . . . a float in the pep rally . . . second lowest per cent in Hush Week . . . participation in the basketball rally—these were among the activities in which their originality was displayed.

These sixty-nine students are quite the rage;

They're mighty active for their age.

SEVENTH GRADE

Seventh grade officers—T. Tollinger, secretary; E. Fishel, treasurer; L. Burg, vice-president; J. Seaks, president.

Sixty-nine peppy students comprise this year's seventh graders. Active in sports, junior band, glee club, and numerous other activities the class of '57 deserves notice. They are the champion gigglers, great collectors of senior pictures and followers of the fads of their older brothers and sisters. The expression on their youthful countenances is a carefree one, for they have not yet been exposed to the trials and tribulations of senior high subjects.

Through reports of their assembly programs and their scholastic ratings it is known that this will be another class of which Red Lion will be proud. The first seventh grade to have quarters in the junior-senior high school building has made its presence felt in many ways.

These fellows get into the swing of things by giving their home room the traditional Christmas trimmings.

Geography solves many unasked questions about lands and people over there. Elaine reads as the rest of the class listens.

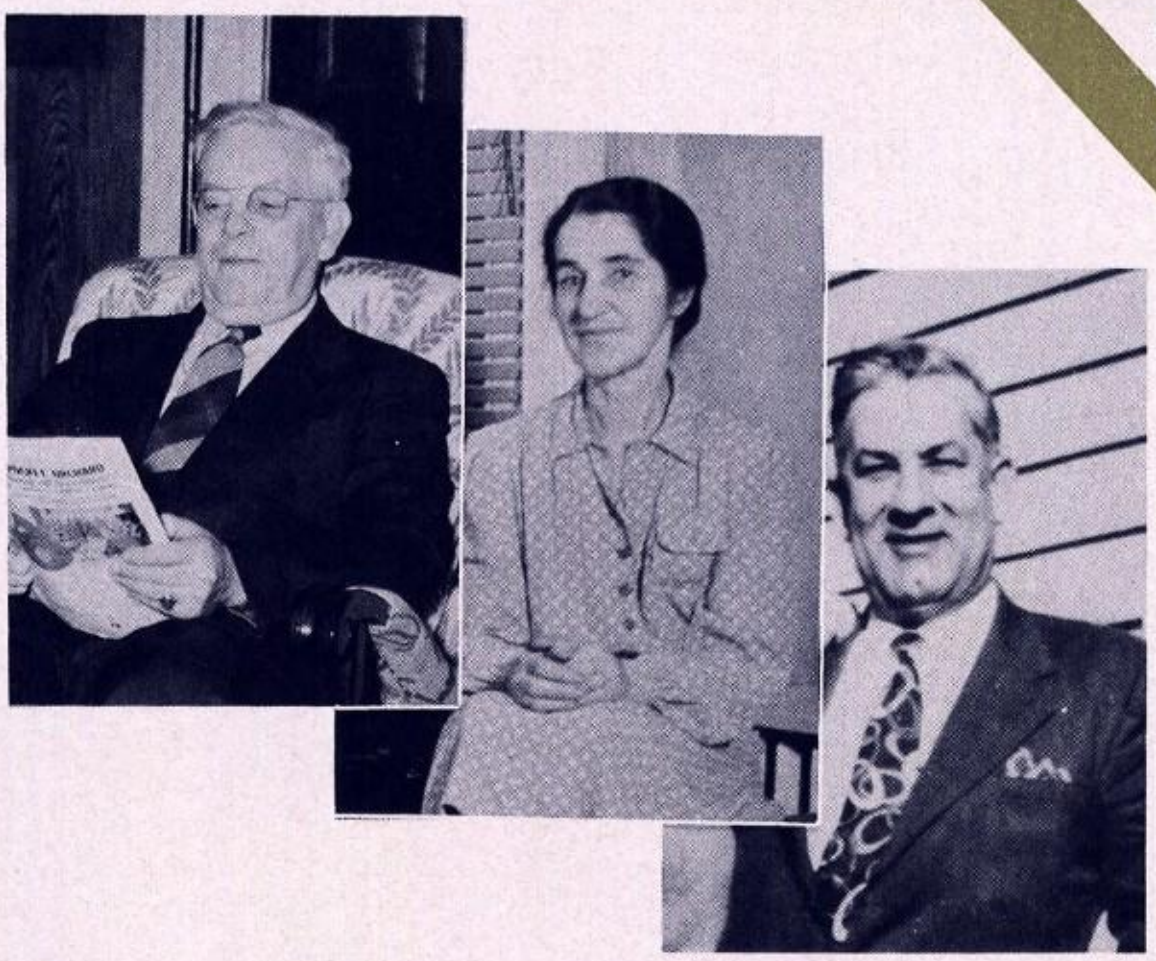
In their caps and gowns these seniors of 1952 look forward to graduation.

Three members of the first graduating class are still living in Red Lion. . . . Mr. Charles Schmuck, Mrs. Charles Zarfos, and Mr. Norman Zarfos.



SENIORS

The following pages will present to you

The graduating class of fifty-two.

SENIORS

Senior officers—Norma Winters, secretary; Ned Sitler, treasurer; Jay Olewiler, president; Braden Ausherman, vice-president.

On June the third, one hundred forty-two more graduates will be added to the alumni list of "Dear Old Red Lion High." Unlike the first five of 1898 who graduated after a two year course and without special ceremony, this year's class will have a commencement with all the trimmings. For four years they have been preparing for the big moment. Studies, activities, and sports have all played an important part in developing their minds for future success.

Varied are their plans. Some look forward to college or hospital training; others already have jobs lined up in factories or offices. To some the all-important goal is marriage, and a few have left the ranks already. Still others will have their immediate future settled by Uncle Sam.

Left: Look out below!—Ike's mixer motor in the revolving heart might conk out any minute. Luckily it didn't, for it provided the decorative hit of the Festival of Hearts. RIGHT: "We crown you, Lee and Willy, King and Queen of Hearts," say Doris Gruver and Bob Snyder, former title holders.

OLD DOC

November 16 . . . Curtain time, everybody—and another senior class production got under way.

Old Doc was a three act human interest drama. The beloved doctor's sitting room-office was the setting in which the audience saw the friendly doctor cure his patients' personal problems and physical ailments. So much did the audience live the play that the sigh of relief was audible when young Bob hung out his shingle announcing his decision to follow in his father's work.

Finis

Another year's record of a class, indeed an entire school, comes to a close. The memories it has recalled we hope were happy ones, as happy as the hours spent by the class of '52 in their alma mater, Red Lion High School.

We'll e'er look back to the gold and black
Of dear old Red Lion High.

To all patrons . . . to all who have loaned pictures and shared information . . . to all who have helped in any way with this edition of the Lion—a sincere thank-you from the staff.
